Bedford Co. is growing: 50,000 + strong

Shelbyville continues to grow, adding new events and programs like those at Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration. In the county as a whole, there's 50,000 + residents and many areas continue to grow with new homes and development.

The Nearest Green Distillery's newest addition is Barrel House BBQ II, which had its grand opening on Thursday. Owner Chuck Baker started Barrel House BBQ 10 years ago in Lynchburg and thought this was an amazing opportunity to bring a Moore County staple to Bedford.

Catholic Charities goal: One stop for help

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

The goal of Catholic Charities of Bedford County is to be the one-stop for financial assistance, according to program coordinator Aricindy Castillo-Guzman.

Located at 210 South Main St. in Shelbyville, Catholic Charities provides financial assistance, food assistance, diapers, household items, personal care items, counseling, and linkage to other resources to Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF clients) through the State of Tennessee's Families First program.

TANF clients are defined as families with children under the age of 18. For NON-TANF clients, Catholic Charities also offers financial assistance, food assistance, household items, personal care items, and linkage to other resources.

"The overall goal of our program is for our clients to be self-sufficient," said Guzman. "We want them to gain independence and not rely on us all the time. Sometimes, it's not even about promoting financial assistance, it's maybe about helping them with a goal that they may have in mind and how can we help them achieve that goal."

Shelbyville-Bedford County Chamber of Commerce will have a ribbon cutting for Catholic Charities of Bedford County on May 3 from 10-11 a.m. They will also be participating in the Juneteenth event on the square as well, according to Guzman, who has served as programs coordinator since January after moving from the Nashville location.

Haynes Service Co.: 25 years of success

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Andy and Susan Haynes, owners and operators of Haynes Service Company, LLC, recently celebrated 25 years in business. They said upon the occasion of the silver anniversary that they're proud to be local examples of an accomplished husband and wife business partnership.

The Bedford County natives said Haynes Service Company in Unionville only continues to grow, with the support of family, friends, employees and customers.

Many people around the community have known them for years. That shows as they're greeted by passers-by in Unionville.

They're locals. Andy and Susan attended Community School, dated after high school, married and then reared their 3 children in the Unionville area.

The Hayneses said recently that they found no need to move away to start their new life, as some did from their generation.

Little did they know in the 1990s that they'd soon be putting their heads together to come up with a business plan—one which would take them into two-plus decades. Now they have a company that continues to grow and support their family.

While sitting in their spacious office conference room, the two recently recalled how they first opened Haynes Service Company in March 1997 at 150 Molder Lane, which was then their home address.

By the start of the new millennium in 2000, their book of "satisfied" customers necessitated an expansion, so they built a shop and office at their new home on Unionville-Deason Road, where they operated the next 16 years.

In 2016, they relocated to their current, larger site, right off U.S. 41A North and Unionville-Deason Road (near their alma mater Community School) Andy said this expansion enabled them to bring in more advanced equipment and "broaden their service offerings."

They believe they've accomplished those goals set over 20 years ago. They now function with over 40 employees, i.e., family and

Andy and Susan Haynes married young, entered into public jobs then set out in the late 1990s to open a business of their own at their home in Unionville. Twenty-five years later, they're still together, working to make the company on Unionville-Deason Road the best it can be.

big, like a payment," she said.

Guzman was offered the job after interning with the program last year. A Shelbyville native, Guzman is attending graduate school for social work at Middle Tennessee State University.

Catholic Charities focuses on short term and emergency assistance, according to Guzman. Though they do get a lot of clients who call saying that their services are about to be disconnected that same day, Guzman said they cannot offer help that same day.

"A lot of people do need financial assistance. They ask for financial assistance maybe towards medical bills or maybe paying loans, and unfortunately we don't do that. We provide financial assistance for rental or utilities and even deposits if they're eligible."

"However, we do want to get them in our office and get the paperwork in, that way we can help them out in the future," she said. Guzman said they are trying to work towards a system that would enable them to offer same-day help.

The program is primarily funded by the Tennessee Serves Neighbors grant from the State of Tennessee Department of Human Services. They use funds from other sources to serve their NON-TANF clients, clients who do not have children in the home or do not have legal custody.

"We will be working on implementing the financial literacy classes again. Also, we have a partnership with Family and Children's Services, and they assist our clients with health insurance access," Guzman said.

They hope to have a full-stock food pantry by the end of April. For now, they are providing clients with gift cards to grocery stores.

Donations can be made online at https://cctenn.org/. Guzman said they are also looking for volunteers to help answer phones and maintain their office space.

Catholic Charities of Bedford also does community outreach, through handing out flyers and visiting with other local organizations such as the Shelbyville Housing Authority as well as making connections with school social workers and Tyson Foods.

"The overall goal for all of our family resource centers is to be like a one-stop shop for our clients. So, we want to bring in more partners, have partners come to our agency—maybe once a week—and then our clients can find all the resources they need," Guzman said.

Haynes

friends.

Andy believes he's built the company on hard work and honesty.

The business flourishes

Haynes Service Co. specializes in much more than heating and cooling. The company offers general contracting for commercial, industrial and residential, project management, machinery installation, maintenance, welding fabrication, HVAC installation, service and repair, electrical, plumbing and concrete services.

"The thing about our business . . . you don't necessarily have to depend on people to come to you," said Susan. "You can reach out to other counties; you can go after the work, if need be."

"It isn't just dependent on just brick and mortar," added Andy.

Andy and Susan have also purchased a couple of grocery stores over the years. In 2010, they purchased Jr's Foodland in Murfreesboro, which they still own and operate. Andy's sister, Beth, serves as manager and they have about 30 employees now.

Susan notes how grocery prices went up during COVID-19. That caused a lot of consumer ill-will and hoarding, which sadly forced them to have to adjust to supply and demand and market increases.

Susan enjoys the grocery store, but still has management responsibilities at Haynes Service Co. She praises her sister-in-law for successful management of Jr's.

With all they have to manage, they're both thankful for their past learning experiences at public jobs. Susan worked in banking about 10 years after high school, before assuming her responsibilities at the family company.

Andy first worked for RN Wilson Contractor, where he was involved in plumbing and electrical work. He then worked for a Murfreesboro boat company—a place which allowed him the opportunity to gain some leadership experience.

Fact is, neither contemplated opening a business in their younger years. "At the time, we did not know we were going to be opening a business . . . . We both feel like God put us there and gave us those skills and knowledge to be able to run our own business. And it was in His timing."

Business in challenging times

Andy and Susan have always believed it was their responsibility to see to the needs of their customers. Sadly, prices have had to increase over the years, advised Andy. That's made his job as business owner more difficult at times.

"I don't like to go up," he advised.

For example, wiring used in building homes back in 1997 was 9 cents a foot and now it's 60 cents a foot. It's gone up six times what it use to be. A piece of sheet metal to do the duct work was $10 back then, now it's $50. So it's gone up five times."

He said market fluctuations are nothing new. He used the price of fuel—something his company uses a lot of—and even bread prices as an example. He gets the letters in the mail, which tell him how dry wall is increasing in cost by 6 percent and lumber, by 30 percent.

The local business owner said in the end, the consumer price increases must be passed along to the consumer. They pull out hand-written invoices from years past. There was one for $30 in 1997 for a service call.

"The cost of service has gone up with the cost of living," said Andy.

In today's market, Andy can estimate the cost to build a house, but the cost could go up 30 percent in 10 days. Susan adds that prices of materials remains unstable.

"I can't do cost estimate anymore, due to the nature of what's happened the last couple years," said Andy.

But they've made it for over two decades with careful management. Even during COVID-19, they masked up and served their communities.

"Through all the COVID shut-downs, we happened to have two businesses that were very much needed," said Susan. "We didn't shut down a single day, in either business."

"The hardest part of my job right now is finding qualified help," said Andy. "It isn't just help, but qualified help."

He remembers how they struggled in 2008-2009, when the economic recession hit. Susan agreed.

"It took a while to overcome it. We've come back stronger than when we started."

Andy said they provided residential and commercial plumbing, electrical and HVAC. "In '08 and '09, when the economy got so bad, we either were going to have to go out of business or diversify. We chose to diversify."

That proved to be a wise move for the Haynes family.

Marriage + family + business

"It takes both of us to make it work," said Andy.

There are skills learned from family too. Andy followed in his dad, Jimmy's, footsteps, learning trades, like home electrical wiring.

Susan added, "Andy is one of those people who's good at whatever he does."

And that's a good thing certainly, as a lot of people have depended on them over the years. They never forget their employees, they said.

Through the lean times, they helped their employees keep their jobs. "We figured out how to keep all of them . . . not lay anyone off. They needed their money, just like we did."

Andy adds, "We treat them like family."

They are truly thankful, they said, for their long-time friends, Tracy and Susan Leverette, who have overseen the HVAC department since 1999.

They instill, they said, The Golden Rule, at Haynes Service Co., along with honesty and hard work. "We were determined to be successful early on," said Andy. "I wasn't willing to accept failure."

The rest is history.

Missile kills at least 50 at Ukrainian train station

KYIV, Ukraine (AP) — A missile hit a train station where thousands of people had gathered to flee in eastern Ukraine, killing at least 50 on Friday, Ukrainian authorities said, as workers unearthed bodies from a mass grave in a town that has become the center of war crimes allegations against Russian troops.

Photos from the station in Kramatorsk showed the dead covered with tarps on the ground and the remnants of a rocket with the words "For the children" painted on it in Russian. About 4,000 civilians were in and around the station at the time of the strike, the office of Ukraine's prosecutor-general said, adding that most were women and children heeding calls to leave the area before Russia launches a full-scale offensive in the country's east.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy and other leaders accused Russia's military of deliberately attacking the station in a city in Ukraine's contested Donbas region. Russia, in turn, blamed Ukraine, saying its forces don't use the kind of missile that hit the station — a contention military experts dismissed.

"Without the strength or courage to stand up to us on the battlefield, (Russian troops) are cynically destroying the civilian population," Zelenskyy said on social media. "This is an evil without limits. And if it is not punished, then it will never stop."

Pavlo Kyrylenko, the regional governor of Donetsk, which lies in the Donbas, said that 50 people were killed, including five children, and many dozens more were wounded.

Even with 30 to 40 surgeons working to treat the wounded, the local hospital was struggling to cope, Mayor Oleksandr Goncharenko said.

"There are many people in a serious condition, without arms or legs," he said.

Britain's Defense Minister Ben Wallace denounced the attack as a war crime and European Union Commission President Ursula von der Leyen called it "atrocious."

"There are almost no words for it," said von der Leyen, who is on a visit to Ukraine. "The cynical behavior (by Russia) has almost no benchmark anymore."

Ukrainian authorities and Western officials have repeatedly accused Russian forces of war crimes in the six-week war that has also forced more than 4 million of Ukrainians to flee the country. Some of the most horrific evidence of atrocities has come from towns around Ukraine's capital that President Vladimir Putin's troops pulled back from in recent days

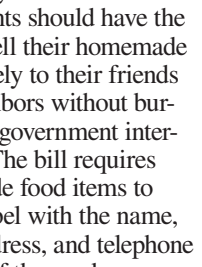
Guinn will join the patrol division after successful completion of the local field training program and Tennessee Law Enforcement Training Academy.

Marsh, legislators enjoy Hamburger Day

Pat Marsh
State Rep. 62nd district



"The fool wonders, the wise man asks."
— Benjamin Disraeli

This week's event highlight was the Lincoln County/Fayetteville Hamburger Day on the Hill. The Lincoln County Livestock Association cooked 1,200 burgers that were provided by Pilaroc Farms' Jennie Schutte and Walt Patrick. The Governor stopped by and visited with Rujena Dotson and all the guys cooking the burgers on the large grill parked between the Capitol and the Cordell Hull Building.

After working up an appetite smelling the great smoke all morning, the entire Legislature ate the burgers and fixins served by the 4-H'ers and several others from Lincoln County. It was a huge success and everyone up here thanks all the Lincoln County folks that helped put this one on. I especially want to thank Carolyn Denton with the FLC Chamber, Lincoln County Mayor Bill Newman, and Fayetteville City Mayor Michael Whisenant. We also got to meet the new Fayetteville City Manager-Kevin Owen. They all made this event special!

While they were here for Hamburger Day, Dan Owen and several 4-H students stopped by the office and we had a great discussion about their programs. Dan is doing a great job at the Ag Extension office as the 4-H director and also heading up the UT Extension office.

Dr. Laura Monks, TCAT Shelbyville President, and 2 others stopped by for a visit and discussed the progress of the new Shelbyville TCAT with me. They are planning a couple of opening events soon- maybe the 1st in mid-April. Can't wait for the ground to be broken for this first class new college in Bedford County.

We got a report this week from the Comptroller's office about reporting fraud, waste, or abuse in government. It states: If a citizen suspects or has knowledge that an agency receiving taxpayer funds is engaging in an activity that is considered to be illegal, improper, or wasteful, the citizen should make a report to the Comptroller's Fraud, Waste, and Abuse Hotline at 1-800-232-5454 or http://comptroller.tn.gov/hotline. We have a streak of clean audits for our counties and I know everyone wants to make sure we keep it up.

One Wednesday of this week, 1st Lady Maria Lee hosted the spouses of the legislators at a reception and lunch at the Governor's house. My wife, Mary, and about 50 spouses attended the function. Mary said it was a great event with good food, fun, and they even packed backpacks for underprivileged children.

The Governor's Budget Amendment came out this week and it has some new items in it that are worth noting. There is an increase of $78 million proposed for airport maintenance and improvements. Also, there are proposals to make capital improvements to our many universities and colleges. This should help to keep our buildings and other many properties in good shape for future generations.

Last week, I told you about our Ag Day on the Hill. It was a huge success highlighting our biggest industry in the state-Agriculture. I want to give you a little more information about our star of Ag Day — the World Grand Champion Walking Horse! Since 1935, there have been 535,922 walking horses registered, with 246,276 that are alive today. There are over 34,000 show horses with an average age of 19 years old. The oldest horse competing is 30 years old and the average age of a competition horse is 8 years old. An amazing animal! It is the second fastest growing breed and the fifth largest equine breed in the nation! Social media was filled with pictures last week of people excited to be standing with the 2021 World Grand Champion Justified Honors and I was proud to see this breed get the recognition it deserves.

I was also glad to see the news this week that our local economy is continuing to come back strong after the pandemic. The Tennessee of Labor announced that every one of our state's 95 counties saw lower unemployment during the second month of 2022. The highlight of the report was our very own Moore County. Moore County had Tennessee's lowest unemployment rate at 1.8%. The nationwide rate also dropped. It is currently down to 3.8% from 6.2% this time last year.

The Legislature passed a bill this week increasing the number of hours kids can remain in a child-care drop-in center from 7 hours per day to 9 hours. HB 2559 also allows the maximum time a child can be in a drop-in center from a max of 14 hours per week to a max of 18 hours per week. This will be a huge help to busy parents who work irregular schedules and don't have enough time to work a full shift and get their child safely to and from child care.

After working on it for the last 2 years, we recently passed the Tennessee Food Freedom Act. HB 813 removes unnecessary and anti-competitive regulations on homemade food items as long as they are not potentially hazardous. Our constituents should have the right to sell their homemade foods safely to their friends and neighbors without burdensome government interference. The bill requires homemade food items to have a label with the name, home address, and telephone number of the producer along with the ingredients in descending order of predominance. This removes a lot of prior license requirements and inspections by the state and should make it easier for people to share their talents and hobbies.

If you need anything, give my office a call at 615-741-6824 or send an email to rep.pat.marsh@capitol.tn.gov. I also enjoy visitors, so come see me in Suite 610 of the Cordell Hull Building if you are in Nashville.

Two arrested on drug charges

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

Two suspects were arrested on drug charges during a traffic stop Tuesday in Shelbyville.

Juan Nunez Mendiola, 18, of Cherokee Trail allegedly ran a traffic light at South Cannon Boulevard and West Holland Street as Officer Ramon Castillo observed.

Castillo was aware Nunez was wanted for aggravated burglary and took him into investigative custody; a records check showed another warrant for theft over $1,000.

An alleged marijuana odor led Castillo to search the vehicle and question its owner, passenger Monica Juan, 19, of East Highland Avenue.

The search by Castillo and Officer Brock Horner revealed packages containing 9 grams of marijuana, scales, a grinder, three vaping cartridges labeled as containing THC, 10 packages allegedly containing cannabis, $494 cash and three cellphones.

Nunez told police all the itens confiscated belonged to him.

Juan "remained quiet," Castillo's report said.

New charges of possession of a schedule VI drug with intent to sell, possession of drug paraphernalia and running a red light were filed against Nunez. He was held on $62,500 bond.

Juan was charged with possession/sale of a schedule VI drug and possession of drug paraphernalia, and held on $12,500 bond.

Shoplifting

"I don't know why I did this, it just happened," a woman accused of attempting to take more than $750 worth of items from Walmart without paying told Shelbyville police Tuesday.

Victoria Herrod allegedly swapped tags with cheaper ones on several items while not scanning others at a self-checkout lane. She was cited and ordered not to return.

Thefts

•Security video shows two women stealing from Pit Stop Market, Highway 64 West, Sunday morning, a Bedford County deputy was told.

One of the women can be seen reaching behind the store's counter while the other distracts an employee.

The women were in a vehicle which the report says was involved in another local crime.

•Five Hot Wheels cars were stolen from a shed at a Riverview Drive home overnight Sunday, police were told.

Taking medications

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise: Today's column included a letter from a reader who suggested that when filling a new prescription it might be better not to get all the pills prescribed at once. As a prescriber and as a patient, I caution readers that they should discuss this suggestion with the doctor before they do this. Many medications need to be taken AS PRESCRIBED for quite a few days before the medicine's desired effect can be felt or achieved.

If, for example, you are prescribed a 30-day supply of a new medicine and you decide on your own that you are only going to get enough pills for 10 days, you might not be giving the medicine enough time to tell if it works. And if, for any reason, you fail to get the next 10 days' worth in time to start taking those pills right after the first 10 days, then you might have let blood or tissue levels of the medicine decrease to the point that your next 10 days of medicine is like starting the 30 days over, rather than continuing the medicine course as the doctor had intended.

You also might end up paying more for your complete prescription. A pharmacist has to charge you not just for the pills but also for his time, overhead and knowledge. So each prescription he fills will have a nominal charge that you are paying. If you get a three-month supply, you pay that charge only once, but if you buy a month at a time, you are paying that charge three times over those three months.

So the reader is right that you might want a smaller amount of pills for a NEW prescription, but for continuing medicines it makes more sense to get the full prescription filled if you can. -- J. Teal, M.D., Los Alamitos, California

HELP REACHING THINGS

Dear Heloise: I frequently drop things in places where it's hard to retrieve them, like between the counter and the refrigerator or behind or under a piece of furniture. Also, my washing machine tub is so deep that I have trouble reaching the articles that are in the bottom after the final spin. Now I keep a cheap, wooden back scratcher handy to help me get things out of the washer, as well as to retrieve items that are hard to reach. -- P. Crotteau, Keizer, Oregon

BIOGRAPHY

Dear Heloise: I am in my 80s and had a recent minor stroke. I had an epiphany while recovering. I thought, what do our family members know about our past schooling, work and other educational or vocational doings? So I decided to write a short biography on my wife and I for family members. We have wills, but that doesn't fill in the past. I hope this will be a hint for others to think about. -- Richard, Fredericksburg, Virginia

TOMATO PASTE

Dear Heloise: Reading your article about the tube of tomato paste reminded me of a trick I learned long ago. Since tomato paste is thick and difficult to get out of the can with a spoon, open both ends of the can. Using one of the detached lids, push the contents out the other end. You get every drop of tomato paste from the can. It's so easy. -- Nick, Little Rock, Arkansas

PET PAL

Dear Heloise: This is a picture of my Dessie, a Yorkie-Shih Tzu mix. We had lost our 16-year-old Westie, and I was so sad. My husband, son and I had gone to a local car show and a lady was holding this tiny little puppy. My son and I fell in love with it. She said there was one left in the litter. My son surprised me by getting the lady's phone number and calling her to request it. That was my Christmas surprise gift that year from him. I named her Dessie because she was destined to be mine. -- Kathy Steele

Dear Readers: To see Dessie and our other Pet Pals, go to www.Heloise.com and click on "Pet of the Week." -- Heloise

EASTER IS ABOUT SUNRISE

A sunrise can remind us this time of year of the story in John 20—the time where we find Mary weeping at the tomb. But this isn't the end of the Easter Story. Like each sunrise, it's the beginning.

Out of the shadows

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Over the years, I've come to realize that some of the best servants in the ministry are working in the shadows. That is to say they don't ask for much limelight for what they do.

That makes me think of Joseph of Arimathea. Who was that man, one might ask? He certainly was a servant standing in the shadows at Jesus' death.

He was a rich man, according to scripture. Yet, his servitude to the Lord, if only for a short time, became his greatest admiration.

Joseph of Arimathea was, according to all four canonical gospels, the man who assumed responsibility for the burial of Jesus after His crucifixion. (The historical location of Arimathea is uncertain, but has been associated with biblical towns.)

Matthew 27:57 describes Joseph as simply "a rich man and disciple of Jesus." Some scholars say it was a part of the early prophecy in the book of Isaiah.

According to the New Testament—John 19:38—this Joseph (not to be confused with Jesus' earthly father, Joseph of Nazareth) asked Pilate that he might have Jesus' body for proper burial.

Here's where the real servanthood and faith of Joseph of Arimathea comes full face. It was Joseph who took a linen shroud and proceeded to Golgotha to take down the abused body of Jesus Christ.

John 19:39 and 40 in The Bible reveals that Joseph and Nicodemus (a fellow worth reading about too) took the body and wrapped it in linen cloth and spices. That was customary burial.

While it had to be a sad event for Joseph, still, if it were one of us, wouldn't it have been a pleasure to have served the Lord this way?

Of course Christians believe that tomb or grave where Joseph placed Jesus' body was only temporary. He arose from death on the third day.

Just like Joseph, out of the shadows servants are usually working—those who's main mission in life is just to serve.

What's your mission when it comes to serving the Savior?

This Easter, reflect on those biblical characters like Joseph of Arimathea. Then, step out in faith and ask the Lord for His strength to allow you to serve Him in some way, great or small.

SPECIAL EASTER ADDITION

New Covenant Christian Bookstore on North Main Street has something unique this Easter. This replica of the Easter story is quite special and tells the story of Jesus' crucifixion and how he arose from the dead.

Frost, sunshine expected in area over weekend

Steve Norris
Weather

Middle Tennessee will see frost both Saturday and Sunday morning as temperatures drop into the low-to-mid 30s. We do expect quite a bit of sunshine and dry weather this weekend.

Temperatures will warm back up into the 70s Monday through Wednesday but we could see shower chances each day at about 50 percent.

Temperatures for the month of March averaged three degrees above average and April is expected to be above average on temperatures.

TCAT-Shelbyville held an open house Tuesday night for prospective students and instructors.

TCAT-Shelbyville hosts open house

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

Tennessee College of Applied Technology in Shelbyville had an open house Tuesday evening to invite potential students to tour the facility and meet some instructors.

Mike Miller and James Cochrane of the Information Technology and Infrastructure Management (ITIM) department had a table set up during the open house. The program teaches students everything from building a PC to networking. Cochrane was selected as College of Applied Technology Faculty Member of the Year by the College System of Tennessee.

Miller and Cochrane said their department is one of the more popular careers as they had a total of 54 students this trimester.

Todd Swerske, Computer Aided Design (CAD) Technology Instructor

Out of 24 of those graduating students, 20 had job placements by the time of graduation, according to Cochrane.

"And that's our goal—to get kids a job," said Cochrane. Many of those students go to work at CHS, HCA, DaVita, and AEDC in Tullahoma.

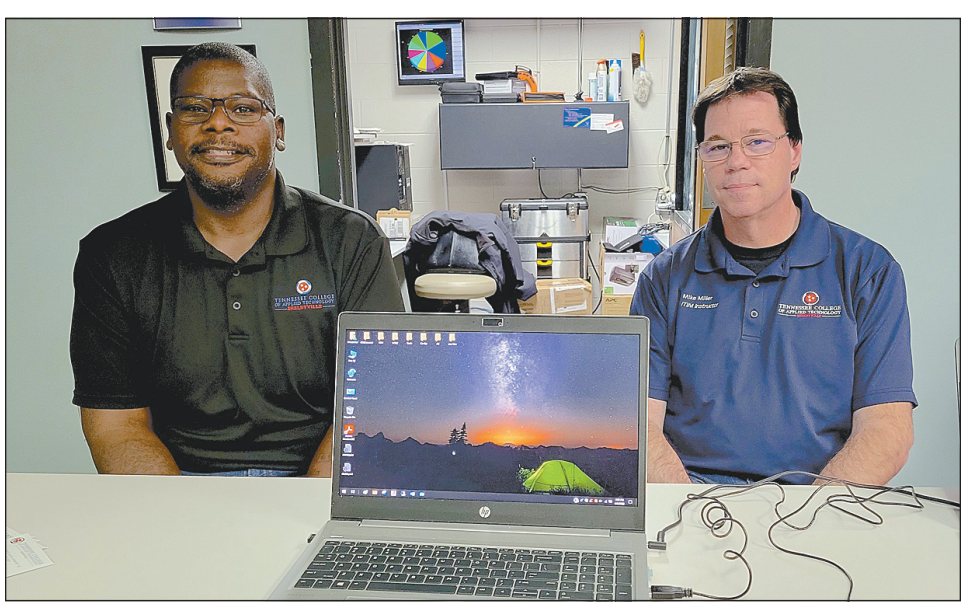
Instructor Todd Swerske is an instructor for Computer Aided Design (CAD). He has a total of 11 students, some are in dual-enrollment or completing a co-op work study with local employers.

Being in a highly industrial area makes career opportunities like this program essential, he said.

The program focuses on mechanical drawings and switches over to architectural building. Most students who graduate from the program go on to work for places like NES and Jacobs Engineering. In all, there are 27 career options in the program, according to Swerske.

"You get a lot of training here," he said. "Working six days a week, these students work really hard and get a lot of training." Swerske himself came through TCAT-Shelbyville's machine shop program.

Families were invited Tuesday to tour the TCAT-Shelbyville facility located at 1405 Madison St.



Instructors James Cochrane and Mike Miller of the Information Technology and Infrastructure Management (ITIM) department

Those at the open house also got to look around practical nursing, machine tool technology, industrial maintenance labs and classrooms.

Plans are for the new TCAT-Shelbyville facility to be located at the 231 North Business Park on U.S. 231 North. A couple of opening events are planned for mid-April, according to TCAT-Shelbyville President Laura Monks.

Haynes Service Company: Built by family

Andy and Susan Haynes have been partners in business for many years, as well as partners in life. They oversee the day-to-day operations at Haynes Service Company in Unionville.

Submitted Photos

By diversifying their company the last 25 years, Andy and Susan Haynes say they've been honored to work with such groups as Uncle Nearest Distillery in Shelbyville.

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Haynes Service Co. is no doubt a family-operated business. The couple's 3 children are highly involved as part of the operation at this time.

Their oldest, Zach, is in charge of new construction home building; Luke oversees the industrial portion, working with factories and bidding and overseeing jobs; and Emma, the youngest, is working at the company as the personal assistant at this time, post college.

Susan and Andy are also very proud grandparents of a 1-year-old granddaughter, Graycen. So they make as much family time as possible.

But Susan says with a laugh that the family that works all week together, doesn't necessarily want to play together all weekend. She's OK with that.

More family works there. Andy's cousin, Billy Beech, oversees the welding and fabrication department. Their nephew, Steven Taylor, is over the electrical and plumbing area. The newest family member to join the team is Madison Haynes, who just married Zach; she works as an administrative assistant. Morgan Haynes, a nurse, is married to son, Luke; she helps out at the grocery store when needed.

"It's all in the family, here," explains Susan.

HVAC has always been an important facet of of Haynes Service Company and this portion of the business is managed by Tracy and Susan Leverette.

On to bigger projects

While Andy admits that he's looking forward to semi-retirement in the future, he said for now, they roll with the changes necessary to continue to help their company grow. Over the years, they've witnessed computers, digital now, find a place within their company.

But hard work is still a must requirement at Haynes Service Company. "Andy has always told our employees, 'do it how you would do you own house.'"

There will always be less than acceptable employees to come along, but Susan says most of theirs over the years have done what they've been asked. "I think it's all in how you treat people."

The company has certainly garnered as a result enough strength to take on the big jobs. "We wired Unionville High School . . . Lowe's, Kroger and a lot of Walgreens," said Andy.

While they specialize in those "big jobs," Andy says he's not beyond repairing someone's lamp either.

Susan laughs, revealing that Andy is plain and simple a "work-a-holic." After taking care of some business over the phone, Andy said, "I would say probably one of our more notable projects that we've worked on and are currently working on is Uncle Nearest Distillery. I am the general contractor . . . been with Keith and Fawn Weaver for 3 years in July."

There are surprises on the horizon out there," advised Andy, who is spending a lot of time at the distillery.

"It's going to be a big thing for our county," he said. " They've invested a lot of money, time and a lot of their life to bring some good things to our community."

Andy said 25 years ago, he would have never dreamed of working on such big jobs. Still, he doesn't stop short of giving credit where he believes credit is due. "I credit every bit of this to God."

With that, he excused himself from the conversation. Customers were waiting for his response, he said.

Susan said life in their business is sometimes fast and furious. Walking out to the front parking lot, Susan points out that she's finally earned a new extension on to her office.

This business owner, woman of strong faith, mom and grandma simply smiles at the thought of it all. "We started our business on a wing and a prayer and have been blessed with success," said Susan.

Musings and Memories

Worship the King

In 2017, Lynn and I stood together on the Mount of Olives overlooking the city of Jerusalem in the nation of Israel.

My heart was flooded with wonder and awe as I looked out across the Kidron Valley toward the ancient walls of that Holy City in the distance.

It had been the City of Kings.

King David had lived there, and his son, King Solomon, built a beautiful Temple on the summit of what was called Mount Zion.

It became the home of the Kings of Judah that followed Solomon.

I imagined the biblical history laid out before my wife and I, and my thoughts focused in on the One the holy scriptures called The Son of David, The Son of God, The Messiah, Emmanuel, God with us!

I imagined that Holy One, Jesus the Christ, standing in the same spot as we were as He overlooked Jerusalem and wept for her.

I imagined the King of Kings standing in that same spot with His disciples prior to their descent into the Valley and through the Gates of Jerusalem.

They may have stood there on that spot every time they stayed in Bethany, the village on the Mount of Olives, where they were the guests of their friends Martha, Mary and Lazarus.

Every time King Jesus and His disciples visited Jerusalem they stayed in Bethany, which was just a few miles away from the City of Kings and the Temple where the Hebrew people worshipped the One True God.

Standing there on the Mount of Olives, I thought back to that Sunday as Jesus and His disciples prepared to make their descent down the road toward Jerusalem and into a week that would change the course of human history.

The Gospel of Mark tells it this way…

"When they were nearing Jerusalem, at Bethpage and Bethany on Mount Olives, He sent off two of the disciples with instructions: 'Go to the village across from you. As soon as you enter, you'll find a colt tethered, one that has never yet been ridden. Untie it and bring it. If anyone asks, 'What are you doing?' say, 'The Master needs him, and will return him right away.'

"They went and found a colt tied to a door at the street corner and untied it. Some of those stand-

Farm to Fork food truck visits city

Organic market on wheels

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

Matt and Jessica Waid, along with in-laws Dwayne and Donna Waid, started their food truck, Farm to Fork, last September. And they've hit the ground running ever since.

The Waids own Big Oak Farm, a family-operated organic market garden with the goal to provide affordable, locally grown organic produce, baked goods and frozen treats.

Located 5414 Charity Road in Petersburg, Jessica explains how they created the food truck as a way to branch out for customers and the community, instead of being "in the middle of nowhere where there's nothing to eat."

According to Jessica, "It's been crazy. . . ." "We never expected it to be as busy as it was. The support we've gotten has been crazy, too."

Most people who come to the food truck are familiar with the Big Oak Farm. "And they were so excited when we were coming to town. It's made it a lot more accessible for people."

Along with branching out, the idea was to use products that are home-grown and in-season. For example, there's no tomatoes in December. But produce like spinach, peppers, lettuce, tomatoes, garlic, and onions this spring will come straight from the farm and make for delicious meals.

They pretty much grow everything except corn and white potatoes, according to Jessica. If they can't source it at the farm, then they go to other local places, always mindful to keep it organic. "We try to stay as true to our mission as we can," she said.

For example, they buy pork and poultry from Buckley Farm in Fayetteville as well as baked goods from local Mennonite bakers.

The Big Oak Farm store opened in the middle of the pandemic in 2020, but they've been growing and harvesting produce since 2017. It wasn't always the couple's dream to own a farm. Rather, the idea sprung from her young son who was diagnosed with several food allergies and sensitivities.

Specialty sandwiches like the Cran-sational at Farm to Fork. See page 3 for more photos.

The research began. "In doing that research, I became really aware of how food is raised and how expensive it is to have to buy organic produce. Sometimes it is not very affordable or accessible. So, I wanted to be able to grow that for my own family as well as be able to share with our community at an affordable cost."

"Since then, it's kind of become a passion." Jessica adds jokingly, "I hated outside; I hated bugs. I was anti-outside. But now, I'm out there all the time and I love just watching the things grow and harvesting. Doing all that is so fun to me."

Typically, she sees an idea for a new recipe then sends it to head cook Jessica O'Neal. "She is fantastic . . . . She'll whip it up and make it better than it ever intended to be."

One of their most popular items is their "Cran-sational" sandwich, which has homemade cranberry sauce, bacon, fresh spinach, turkey, cream-cheese, and a blend of seven cheeses, which O'Neal came up with on her own.

Striking the proper balance

On the farm, the Waids home school their four young children. Matt works full-time at Landers Tires in Shelbyville. So, balancing time is still something they're still trying to figure out in addition to making sure they have the best produce to serve their kids.

"It's become a passion of ours, and we love being able to serve the community," says Jessica.

Of course, the most challenging part of owning the food truck is space and how much to bring. The first week, they had no idea what to expect coming to town for the first time. The trailer is large, but only so much can fit into it. So, they maximize how to pack things and tally up tickets at the end of the week to get an idea of what sold.

"It's crazy, too, because stuff that sells one week is not the most popular the next. So, in many ways it's a guessing game," she says. "We have to figure out a schedule to stick to because it gets so overwhelming at times, but we're happy for the support we're getting."

She loves it when people love their food. Yet the most rewarding part has been the relationships they've built with the regulars who come back week after week.

"I've met so many people...and now I'm invested in their lives and what they've got going on. And that's probably the most rewarding."

Look for the next location of the Big Oak Farm food truck on Facebook and Instagram or call 931- 619-9154 for more information.

My Take

It's Masters week

The azaleas and dogwoods are in bloom and it is Masters week at Augusta National Golf Course.

Golf is not one of my high priority sports. I'm not particularly good at it. And if I really want to take a nap on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon all I have to do is turn on a golf match on the TV.

Despite my lack of enthusiasm for golf, I have to admit that the Masters is a spectacle on so many levels that it always piques my interest. I have been lucky enough to attend two Masters events on the first Thursday of the tournament.

Like so many who have boxes at the Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration people who live in the Augusta, Georgia area have Masters tickets which have been passed down through families for many years. That was how I was able to obtain my tickets.

The number of flowers and trees that line the fairways are almost too many to mention in this short space. The azaleas and the yellow and white dogwoods usually get the most attention.

Many may not know the Augusta National Course was built on the site of the Fruitland Nursery which closes in 1910. The nursery had bought flowers and trees from around the world and their legacy still remains. The beauty of the course is difficult to describe in words or to see on TV. It has to be experienced.

And that is what the Masters is _ an experience. Unlike most sporting events where every power play, first down or home run has an advertisement attached to it you want find any advertising at the Masters. No banners or signs mar the landscape.

Candy bars sold at the concession stands are wrapped in green wax paper. Chips are sold in a green pouch. Soft drinks and beer are served in plastic cups with only the Masters logo printed on them.

The concessions are one of the more interesting areas. Ticket prices for the event may be high, but you can eat your fill without spending a lot of money. The pimento cheese sandwich, a signature meal at Augusta can be purchased for $1.50. If you really want to splurge you can buy a barbecue sandwich or a chicken sandwich for $3.00. Need something to wash that down? Iced tea,

Fish: A great weeknight meal

French Dijon Baked Fish

My family has always been fish eaters. When I was in elementary school, we often had baked halibut for Sunday dinner.

My dad is an avid fisherman. While living in Utah, my brother and I would go out with him after work in the summer and catch crappie from a little aluminum fishing boat and in the winter, we would go out on the ice, auger a hole through to the water and fish through the hole while sitting on 5-gallon buckets - talk about cold toes!! - but enjoyed every minute.

I've been salmon fishing in Michigan, trout fishing in Colorado and caught snappers and porgies in Florida. My whole family loves fish in all different ways - from fish tacos (a favorite of my nephews) to a smoked mackerel spread with crackers to baked salmon.

I think spring and summer are a perfect time for fish dinners. They somehow seem lighter and more refreshing than the comfort food roasts and casseroles of the fall and winter.

The recipe below is for a French twist on baked fish is packed with flavor and only takes a few minutes to prepare, so it is an excellent choice for a weeknight dinner.

You can use any kind of firm fleshed fish for this recipe. One of my favorites is Mahi Mahi, a mild, firm, white fish. But you can use cod, halibut, tilapia, grouper or even salmon. Pat the surface of the fish dry before spreading with the mayonnaise mixture.

The tops of the fillets are coated with a mixture of mayonnaise, Dijon mustard, horseradish and dill weed. This coating not only gives it a punch of flavor but also helps to keep the flesh moist and tender, so be sure to cover the entire top. Then comes a sprinkling of panko breadcrumbs and Parmesan cheese mixed with a little olive oil to give it a crunchy texture on top.

Try incorporating fish and seafood 2-3 times a week in your menus. The omega 3 fatty acids and lower fat content make it a heart healthy choice. Baking gives fish a great flavor and is much lower in fat than deep frying.

So, give some baked fish a try. And if you can – go fishing!

French Dijon Baked Fish

3 Tbsp. Panko breadcrumbs
2 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tsp. olive oil
1 Tbsp. mayonnaise
1 Tbsp. Dijon style mustard
1 tsp. cream style horseradish
1/2 tsp. dried dill weed
2 (4-6 oz.) firm white fish fillets
Kosher salt and black pepper
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh chives
lemon wedges

In a small bowl, stir together the breadcrumbs, cheese and olive oil. Set aside. In another small bowl, stir together the mayonnaise, mustard, horseradish and dill weed. Place the fish fillets on a baking sheet and sprinkle with a little kosher salt and black pepper. Spread the mustard mixture over the top of each fillet, covering them all the way to the edges. Sprinkle with the breadcrumb mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for about 12-15 minutes or until fish is flaky. If the breadcrumbs are not browned, place under the broiler until toasty brown. Remove to serving plate and sprinkle with chives. Serve with a lemon wedge on the side to squeeze over the the top.

PASSOVER

Make Jewish Cuisine Part of Your Passover Celebration

Passover is a Jewish festival that commemorates the story of Exodus. In that story, ancient Israelites were freed from slavery in Egypt, and men, women and children of Jewish heritage celebrated that liberation during Passover, a seven- or eight-day festival that is one of the more widely observed Jewish holidays.

Passover celebrations begin on the 15th day of the Jewish month of Nisan. That day typically falls in March or April of the Gregorian calendar. One of the symbols of Passover is matzo, an unleavened flatbread made from flour and water. Though matzo is an enduring symbol of Passover, that does not mean it cannot be enjoyed at other times of the year. In fact, those who want to celebrate their Jewish heritage or even those who simply want to experience Jewish culture can enjoy matzo throughout the year. It's even possible to get a little creative with matzo. Such is the case with the following recipe for "Chicken With Matzo Dumplings" from Michael van Straten's "The Healthy Jewish Cookbook" (Frog, Ltd.). This delicious recipe can be a part of your Passover celebration or just a meal to sit down and enjoy with family and friends.

This delicious recipe for "Chicken With Matzo Dumplings" can be enjoyed during Passover or throughout the year.

Chicken With Matzo Dumplings

Serves 4-6

For the broth

1 leftover chicken carcass, all skin and fat removed
2 Spanish onions, 1 whole and unpeeled, the other peeled and chopped
1 leek, coarsely chopped
3 celery stalks, with leaves if possible, coarsely chopped
4 bay leaves
1 large spring of rosemary
2 large sprigs of thyme
1 large sprig of sage
4 large sprigs of parsley
12 white peppercorns

Note: You can use good-quality, low-salt kosher chicken stock cubes or bouillon powder, but the recipe above for homemade broth is recommended.

For the dumplings:

7 ounces medium matzo meal (about 8 matzo sheets, ground up)
3 eggs
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped flat-leaf parsley
3 grindings of black pepper
2 pinches of salt

First, make the broth. Put the carcass in a large pot and cover with about 21/2 quarts of water. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Add the vegetables, herbs and peppercorns, return to a boil, cover and simmer for 1 hour. Strain, reserving the broth.

Make the dumplings by mixing all the dumpling ingredients together, then knead until you have a smooth dough, adding a little water if necessary. Cover and let rest for at least 3 hours.

Using your hands, form the mixture into balls the size of apricots.

To put it all together, bring the chicken broth up to simmering point. Drop in the dumplings and continue simmering, covered, for 30 minutes.

If you don't have a chicken carcass, boil a whole chicken for the soup and use the meat in other dishes. Traditionally, a boiling fowl from a kosher butcher would be used.

Health note*: This is the famous "Jewish penicillin" beloved of every mother and grandmother. It's not an old wives' tale; there's good scientific evidence that it contains vitamins, minerals and other natural chemicals that are antibacterial and immune-boosting. In addition, nutrients and valuable plant chemicals are extracted from the vegetables and herbs during the cooking process, most of which end up as active ingredients in the finished soup.*

Passover: celebration of freedom

Passover is a Jewish celebration that begins this year at sundown on Friday, April 15, and ends in the evening of Saturday, April 23. Passover typically occurs around the same time as Christian Easter.

According to the religious resource My Jewish Learning, Passover is a festival of freedom that marks the Israelites' exodus from Egypt and their freedom from slavery. The term "passover," which is also known as "pesach," coordinates to a key moment in religious history.

According to texts, the Egyptian Pharaoh refused to liberate the children of Israel, despite requests from Moses and his brother, Aaron. The pharaoh was warned that his people and he would be punished if the pharaoh did not comply. Persistent and obstinate in his refusal, Pharaoh was subjected to 10 plagues, each of which was more devastating than the previous one. These plagues included blood, frogs, bugs, flies, pestilence, boils, hail, locusts, darkness, and finally the demise of all firstborn males. To be spared the penultimate devastation, Israelites were instructed to sacrifice a lamb for a meal and to mark their doors with its blood. The Lord would see the blood and pass over that household, sparing the occupants' sons.

Because Passover is so symbolic, Passover seders feature many traditions. Some traditions may need to be modified to maintain health and safety during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Traditionally, an egg, bitter herbs, a shank bone, parsley, haroset (chopped mixed nuts, fruits and cinnamon), and lettuce are included. Celebrants can even experiment with making unleavened bread at home if necessary. If horseradish for a bitter herb is unavailable, any item that can cause tears, such as ginger or raw lemon, may be substituted.

ing there said, 'What are you doing untying that colt?' The disc iples replied exactly as Jesus had instructed them, and the people let them alone.

"They brought the colt to Jesus, spread their coats on it, and He mounted (and rode toward the Gates of Jerusalem).

"The people gave Him a wonderful welcome, some throwing their coats on the street, others spreading out palm branches they had cut from trees.

"Running ahead and following after, they were calling out, 'Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in God's name! Blessed the coming kingdom of our father David! Hosanna in highest heaven!'

"Jesus entered Jerusalem, then entered the Temple. He looked around, taking it all in. But by now it was late, so He went back to Bethany with the Twelve."

The young man named John, one of Jesus' first disciples, a trusted confidant, was with Jesus that day, and he had been by His side for almost all of Jesus' public ministry.

John tells of the activities surrounding that eventful day in his gospel account…

"Word got out among the Jews that Jesus was back in town. The people came to take a look, not only at Jesus but also at Lazarus, who had been raised from the dead. So, the high priests plotted to kill Lazarus because so many of the Jews were going over and believing in Jesus on account of him.

"The next day the huge crowd that had arrived for the Feast of the Passover heard that Jesus was entering Jerusalem. They broke off palm branches and went out to meet him. And they cheered: 'Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in God's name! Yes! The King of Israel!'

"Jesus got a young donkey and rode it, just as the Scripture has it: 'No fear, Daughter Zion: See how your king comes, riding a donkey's colt.'

"The disciples didn't notice the fulfillment of many Scriptures at the time, but after Jesus was glorified, they remembered that what was written about Him matched what was done to Him.

"The crowd that had been with Him when He called Lazarus from the tomb, raising him from the dead, was there giving eyewitness accounts. It was because they had spread the word of this latest God-sign that the crowd swelled to a welcoming parade. The Pharisees took one look and threw up their hands: 'It's out of control. The world's in a stampede after Him.'"

Tomorrow is Palm Sunday, the beginning of what Christians refer to as Holy Week or Passion Week.

Palm Sunday is that day on the Christian Calendar that believers around the World look back and commemorate that day that Jesus made His "Triumphal Entry" into Jerusalem.

He returned to the City of Kings that one last time, knowing that He had a date with destiny, a date to fulfill God's Plan, a date when He would say to His Father, "Nevertheless, not my will but Thy will done."

Jesus surrendered His will to God's plan, and He laid down His life in atonement for the sins of mankind.

The King of Kings, the Son of God, the Lion of Judah, was coming into Jerusalem this time as the Lamb of God, the Passover Lamb.

The Final Sacrifice.

I pray that you will join a group of Bible believers tomorrow on Palm Sunday, at a church of your choosing, to worship the King of Kings, the Lamb of God.

"Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in God's name! Yes! The King of Israel!"

Yes, the Masters is an experience on many levels. You get to see the top golfers in the world play in the most prestigious tournament. I was standing between holes when Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, walked within five feet of me. That was an impressive experience.

If you are fortunate enough to go be careful who you stand with, especially at the 18th green. I came back to town after my day on the course and several people asked me how I liked the Masters. They said I had a lot of face time on TV.

By the time you read this the real competition will have begun for the green jacket. Catch a glimpse or two if you can.

Carrot Cake Cookie Pies

Indulge in carrot cake cookies filled with a sweet cream cheese-yogurt mixture for a nutrient-packed dessert or snack, courtesy of The Dairy Alliance.

Servings: 10
5 oz. 1⁄3-less-fat cream cheese, softened
1⁄4 C. powdered sugar
1⁄4 C. vanilla Greek yogurt
1⁄2 tsp. vanilla extract
1⁄4 C. brown sugar
1⁄4 C. granulated sugar
1⁄4 C. vanilla Greek yogurt
3⁄4 C. grated or finely chopped carrots
2 Tbsp. butter, melted
2 Tbsp. applesauce
1⁄2 tsp. vanilla extract
1 C. all-purpose flour
1 egg, lightly beaten
3⁄4 C. rolled oats
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1⁄2 tsp. ground ginger
1⁄2 tsp. ground allspice (optional)
1⁄2 tsp. baking powder
1⁄2 tsp. baking soda
Pinch of salt

Instructions

Preheat oven to 350° degrees. To make filling, combine filling ingredients in a small bowl and beat with an electric mixer until well combined.

Transfer to an airtight container and refrigerate at least one hour, preferably overnight. To make cookies, combine sugars, Greek yogurt, carrots, butter, applesauce, egg, and vanilla in a large bowl and mix well.

Combine flour, oats, spices, baking soda and baking powder; add to sugar mixture and stir just until just combined. Using a rounded tablespoon, measure batter out onto a greased baking sheet and press down to flatten slightly. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool on wire racks. Spread filling evenly among half of cooled cookies; top with remaining cookies. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Cook time is 10-12 minutes.

1 teaspoon baking powder
1 pinch salt*
zest of one lemon
1 large egg
1/4 cup butter (melted and cooled)
4 tablespoons milk
*If you use unsalted butter then add 1/4 teaspoon of salt.

LEMON GLAZE
1 1/2 -2 cups powdered / icing sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon milk

Instructions

Pre-heat oven to 300F. Line a large cookie sheet with parchment paper.

ITALIAN EASTER COOKIE

In a large bowl whisk together the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and lemon zest. Make a well in the middle and add the egg, butter and the milk. With a fork combine until mixture is almost combined, move it to a flat surface and gently knead to form a smooth dough.

Remove pieces of dough to form 5-6 inches ropes, make sure the ropes are quite thin then form to make a knot, if making smaller ropes you can join them together to form circles if you prefer.

Place on prepared cookie sheet and bake for approximately 15-18 minutes or until lightly golden. Let cool then cover with lemon glaze or dust with powdered sugar if desired.

LEMON GLAZE

In a small bowl add the sifted powdered sugar, lemon juice and milk, combine to your desired thickness. (less or more milk as needed).

Griffy talks with community

Rally held

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Matthew "Matt" David Griffy, chief of police in Petersburg, recently announced that he's running for sheriff of Bedford County. He held a rally last weekend to celebrate his candidacy in the upcoming May 3 primary.

Griffy has nearly 20 years of experience in law enforcement. A native of Bedford County and raised in Unionville, he graduated in 1997 from Community High School and attended UT Southern from 1997-1999 and received an associate's degree in kinesiology/exercise science on a basketball scholarship.

Griffy then enrolled at Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro in 1999 and went on to graduate in 2002 with a bachelor's in physical education/health nutrition and lifetime wellness.

He began his career in local law enforcement in 2000, working in Petersburg. Griffy then transferred to Shelbyville Police Department in 2003, working there until 2010.

With a dream to open his own gym, MG Sports & Fitness was created. While still serving SPD, he balanced both owning a gym and working as an officer.

Griffy has stated his goals as sheriff are simple. He wants to improve and advance the sheriff's department and to "work as stewards of the taxpayers' dollars to provide a more cost-efficient department and give the good people of Bedford County a law enforcement team they deserve."

Small chapel at Seven on Main

Wood from Gallaghers

The newest Wartrace addition, Seven on Main, is bringing a western vibe to the historic railroad town. Shelia LeDere, owner of Old Petticoat Trading Co., along with seven vendors, has opened a western-themed bazaar, featuring old country stores, artisan products, and even a small chapel.

SMALL AREA OF WORSHIP

"Tennessee's smallest chapel" is one of the features of Seven on Main in Wartrace. The cross on the chapel is from wood from the old Gallagher Family home in Wartrace, according to owner Shelia LeDere.

The Extra Point

Tiger's amazing comeback

I remember where I was when I saw the news that Kobe Bryant had been killed in a helicopter crash.

I remember thinking, no way, this has to be fake news.

One of the greatest athletes of this generation gone? No. Turned out to be true.

On February 23, 2021, I got the same feeling in my gut when I heard the news about Tiger Woods being in a serious car wreck.

Although alive, it turned out to be a serious wreck with major implications, not just on his professional golf playing career, but his very life.

In the many weeks and months following the near-fatal wreck, the injuries were disclosed and needless to say, they weren't minor by any stretch.

The man damn near lost his legs.

Forget ever playing golf again, right?

I mean there was talk about him possibly losing a leg and never walking again—golf could never be a tangible thing again for one of the all-time greats.

While I'll remember the news about the Kobe Bryant helicopter crash and Tiger's car crash, I'll remember where I was on Thursday, April 7, 2022, too.

I watched a man defy odds and walk the course at Augusta National during The Masters, a place where he had won five times before, not just playing in the bottom of the field, but competing to a point where he finished one-under par after the first day of competition.

I don't care what anybody says—this is absolutely remarkable.

One of the greatest, if not the greatest, to ever play the game has defied the odds and is playing some spectacular golf.

Everyone knows his fall from grace with his scandals and the fallout from his divorce, but everyone also knows he came back following a 2017 arrest and won the Masters in 2019.

History has a way of repeating itself.

When everyone had said he was finished following his affairs and substance abuse issues, he came back.

This is nothing new for him.

At the time of this publication, the weekend cut for the Masters had not been made, but it definitely stood a real chance for him to be playing meaningful golf in Augusta on Saturday.

Whether he's walking up 18 on Sunday, wearing

Champs fall behind in 2 Tiger outbursts

By CHRIS SIERS
sports@t-g.com

LEWISBURG — Cascade fell behind early on Thursday night at Marshall County and was unable to overcome two five-run innings in an 11-7 non-district loss.

The Champs took the early lead and plated three in the top of the frame before starting pitcher Logan Green was tagged for five runs in the bottom of the inning.

Cascade pulled within one in the top of the second, but that one-run differential was as close as the Champions would come.

Marshall County built on its lead with a run in the fourth and closed its scoring with another five-run inning in the fifth.

Cascade was able to knock in two runs in the sixth and a final run in the top of the seventh, but was unable to generate enough offense to make a run at the Tigers' four-run lead.

Conner Melson led Cascade at the plate with a 2-for-3 night and a double to go along with three RBIs. Ryan Inmon also doubled and drove in a run as well.

Cascade had to reach deep into its pitching staff and five different Champion pitchers made an appearance against the Tigers.

Logan Green pitched one inning and was hit for five runs on three hits, while the Tigers added six runs off Jake Bates.

Walker Craig pitched a scoreless 1/3 inning while Zach Crosslin tossed 2/3 inning and struck out a pair.

Cascade will be back on its home turf on Monday and will host cross-county rival Community in a key District 7-AA matchup at 6:30 p.m.

Good things come in threes for Viqueens

By RICKEY CLARDY

UNIONVILLE — The Community Viqueens scored three runs in three different innings to take a commanding lead and the Community pitching held the Grundy County Lady Jackets scoreless as the Viqueens took a 10-0 win in the District 7-AA softball opener Thursday night.

Community (9-5, 1-0) jumped out in front in the opening inning.

Singles by Taylar Wessner and Abi Brown and a double by Carlie Blanton led to three runs as the Viqueens took a 3-0 lead.

Singles by Emma Bentley, Zoey Dixon, and Brown led to three more runs in the second inning as Community upped its lead to 6-0.

After the Community bats cooled off for a couple of innings, the Viqueens added to their lead in the fifth.

After walks to Brown and Blanton, Haley Farrar blasted a pitch on a line over the right-center field fence for a 3-run homer to give the Viqueens a 9-0 advantage.

"I'm proud of her (Farrar) and her strength," Coach Cam Farrell of the Viqueens said. "Being a senior, being a leader, getting the runs in, she did a good job with that."

Meanwhile, the Viqueen pitching tandem of Wessner and Haley Mitchell kept the Lady Jackets at bay.

Wessner allowed just one hit while striking out four and walking two in four innings of work while Mitchell struck out three and allowed three hits in two innings of relief.

Lady Jacket errors and a bunt single by Abbi Murrill led to the final Viqueen run as the game ended in his iconic championship red shirt and black pants, and raising one of his famous Tiger fist pumps, or he's in the middle of the pack, the sheer fact one of the game's greatest has overcome a truly traumatic injury and is not just playing golf, but meaningful competition at a high level on the sport's highest stage, well, that's something everyone should be proud of.

Whether he's there at the top of the leaderboard on Sunday or not, I'll remember where I was and the importance of the 2022 Masters.

Champs take 2 over Grundy Co.

T-G STAFF REPORT

COALMONT — With rains moving in earlier this week, the originally scheduled two-game series between Cascade and Grundy County became a doubleheader on Monday night, which Cascade swept.

Cascade 7, Grundy Co. 0

During the first District 7-AA game between the Champs and the Yellow Jackets, Cascade starter Tyler Knight was in total control on the mound.

Knight pitched all five innings for Cascade and gave up just one hit, while striking out five.

Cascade, on the other hand, relied on two big innings, a three-run first and a four-run fifth, to take Game 1 from Grundy County and give Cascade a much-needed district victory.

Knight helped his own cause with a 2-for-3 night, with a pair of runs knocked in, while Ryan Inmon went 1-for-2 with two RBIs as well.

Cascade 3, Grundy Co. 1

Hits were far and few between for both squads in Game 2 of the series, with Cascade pitchers Zach Crosslin and Walker Craig combining for a no-hitter to finish the sweep in a 3-1 win in the nightcap.

Grundy County grabbed the lead with the game's first run in the top of the first inning, but saw the Champs drive in a pair in the bottom of the frame to take the slim, 2-1 lead.

Cascade never trailed again.

The Champs played add on in the bottom of the fourth inning and the two-run lead held to secure the 3-1 win.

Kobe Inmon was the offensive hero for Cascade, going 1-for-2 with a pair of runs driven in.

More Black coaches sue NFL alleging discrimination

By LARRY NEUMEISTER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Two Black coaches joined Brian Flores on Thursday in his lawsuit alleging racist hiring practices by the NFL when there are vacancies for coaches and general managers.

The updated lawsuit in Manhattan federal court added coaches Steve Wilks and Ray Horton.

The lawsuit said Wilks was discriminated against by the Arizona Cardinals in 2018 when he was hired as a "bridge coach" but was given no meaningful chance to succeed, while Horton was subjected to discriminatory treatment when he was given a sham interview for the Tennessee Titans head coach position in January 2016.

Flores also criticized the NFL in the rewritten lawsuit for its response to the lawsuit he brought against it and its teams several weeks ago.

The lawsuit added the Houston Texans to the teams Flores has alleged discriminated against him, saying the Texans engaged in "blatant retaliation" by removing him from consideration for its head coach vacancy after he sued the league.

In a release from the lawsuit's attorneys, Wilks said he hoped the lawsuit would help bring racial equality to the league. Arizona replaced Wilks with Kliff Kingsbury, a white man with no NFL coaching experience, and gave a white general manager an extension despite a drunk driving conviction.

"When Coach Flores filed this action, I knew I owed it to myself, and to all Black NFL coaches and aspiring coaches, to stand with him," Wilks said. "This lawsuit has shed further important light on a problem that we all know exists, but that too few are willing to confront. Black coaches and candidates should have exactly the same ability to become employed, and remain employed, as white coaches and candidates."

Horton said he was "devastated and humiliated" when he learned that his interview with the Titans was a sham.

"By joining this case, I am hoping to turn that experience into a positive and make lasting change and create true equal opportunity in the future," he said.

The NFL declined to comment Thursday.

"The decisions we made after the 2018 season were very difficult ones," the Arizona Cardinals said in a statement. "But as we said at the time, they were entirely driven by what was in the best interests of our organization and necessary for team improvement. We are confident that the facts reflect that and demonstrate that these allegations are untrue."

Houston, in a statement, said its search for a head coach was "very thorough and inclusive."

"Due to his previous success as a coach in the NFL, Brian Flores was among the first candidates we held a formal interview with for the position and he remained a candidate until the very end," it said. "We enjoyed our multiple conversations with Brian regarding his vision for our organization."

It added: "In the end, we made the decision to hire Lovie Smith as our head coach and we believe he is the best fit for our team moving forward. It was a very fluid process that allowed us to spend time with a number of quality candidates. We are proud of our decision and will vigorously defend our process."

Smith, who is Black, was announced as the Texans head coach in February. He served as the team's defensive coordinator in 2021.

In Thursday afternoon's county clash matinee, the Cascade Champions relied on a hat trick from Drake Hodge to finish off Community in a 6-0 sweep.

Hodge found the back of the net three times, while Isaac Chappa, Sam Bossam and Pablo Sola each scored once.

Cascade built a 3-0 lead by halftime and finished the game with three more in the second half.

Viking keeper Villimar Anica recorded seven saves against the Champs.

Cascade will travel to Forrest on Tuesday afternoon, while Community will travel to Tullahoma.

Brown's two hits led the way as seven different Viqueens accounted for eight Community safeties.

"Super proud," Farrell said. "We started young with a freshman pitcher and a freshman catcher. I thought they did really well. Then we had a junior pitcher come in and close the game and she did really well."

Farrell is looking forward to how his team displays its energy as the season progresses and district play starts.

"The biggest thing is these girls care for each other and it's hard to get that anywhere," Farrell said. "A lot of them play several sports together and when they come to softball they all come together as family and they're ready to go and I don't have to do anything but sit back and enjoy the ride."

Community will be hosting the Walking Horse Softball Classic on Friday and Saturday.

Rockets use middle innngs to stop Vikes

By RICKEY CLARDY
Sports Writer

UNIONVILLE — The Forrest Rockets fell behind early to the Community Vikings before coming back with nine runs in the middle innings as the Rockets defeated the Vikings 11-5 in a District 7-AA baseball game Monday night.

The Rockets managed five hits but were the recipients of 10 walks as Forrest stayed unbeaten in district play.

Forrest took a 1-0 lead in the first inning with the help of two walks and an RBI-groundout by Kason Fuller.

The Vikings bounced back with three runs in the bottom of the inning. Mason Russell's grounder drove in the first run while a Rocket error put Community up 2-1.

Drew Harris drove in a run with a sacrifice fly to end the first inning scoring as the Vikings went up 3-1.

The Rockets bounced back with three hits and two runs in the third inning on consecutive RBI-hits by Brennan Mealer and Fuller to tie the game at 3-3.

Forrest took the lead for good in the fourth inning.

A bases-loaded walk by Camden Vaughn and a sacrifice fly by Riley Durbin gave the Rockets a 5-3 lead.

The fifth inning was big as the Rockets expanded their lead with five runs. Mealer had the big hit with a bases-clearing double as Forrest batted around and took a 10-3 lead.

Community was not through and came back in the bottom of the inning.

Maki Fleming singled and was on base as Russell parked a pitch over the left field fence as the Vikings cut the Rocket lead to 10-5.

The Vikings went down in order in the final two innings as Forrest added an insurance run in the top of the seventh to complete the scoring.

Mealer and Fuller had two hits each to lead the Rocket 5-hit attack.

Russell's homer was the best of three hits for the Vikings.

Mealer started on the mound for the Rockets with Austin Grubbs in relief in the fifth.

Russell started for the Vikings with Dylan Norris and Gage Underwood in relief.

Forrest mounts early lead in win over Vikings

By RICKEY CLARDY
Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL — The Forrest Rockets took an early lead and held on to defeat the Community Vikings 9-5 in a District 7-AA game Thursday night.

After Corey Paterick put the Vikings ahead 1-0 with a two-out single in the second, the Rockets bounced back with four runs in the bottom of the inning with the help of a run-scoring single by Riley Durbin and a sacrifice fly by Brennan Mealer.

Each team scored a run in the third inning.

Mason Russell drove in a run for the Vikings on a sacrifice fly while the Rockets scored on a passed ball as Forrest took a 5-2 lead.

A Kason Fuller single and a Luke Allen groundout led to two runs in the fourth inning as the Rockets increased their lead to 7-2.

The Vikings bounced back in the fifth as Russell drilled a two-run homer as Community cut the Forrest lead to 7-4.

The Rockets added two insurance runs in the sixth as a passed ball and a Shawn Brown single put Forrest up 9-4.

Russell singled in a run for his fourth RBI of the night in the seventh, but it wasn't enough as the Rockets completed a two-game sweep of the Vikings.

Fuller had four hits to lead the Rockets at the plate while Russell's two hits led the Vikings.

Durbin was the winning pitcher for Forrest with Preston Gentry getting the final out in relief.

Eagles notch win over Rebs

By GARY JOHNSON
gjohnson@t-g.com

Shelbyville Central claimed an impressive 2-1 win over visiting Franklin County in district play on Monday evening.

"We played well for our first district game of the season against Franklin County. We came out a little flat at the beginning and held the ball too long in the back," Shelbyville Central coach Chris Fritz said.

The Rebels took an early lead from a passing mistake and a counter.

The Eagles responded with a goal off the foot of Oscar Ramirez.

"In the second half, we opened up our shooting and found more spaces to attack. Our frontline really stepped up to keep the ball on the Franklin County end," Fritz said.

After some nice combination play, Yahir Cervantes found the back of the net for the game-winner.

"Franklin County is a well-coached and disciplined team, so it's always nice to start out the district path off with a win."

Central tennis teams downed

T-G STAFF REPORT

MANCHESTER — It was a tough afternoon for the Shelbyville Central tennis squads, dropping two matches at Coffee County.

On the girls side of the match, Coffee County claimed a 5-2 win over the Eaglettes, while the Red Raiders took a clean sweep from the Eagles.

For the girls, Rachel Phillips provided the lone singles victory at the No. 5 seed, outlasting Emma Fulks, 5-2.

Emma Habel nearly had another singles victory for the Eaglettes, but dropped a grueling, 9-7 decision.

Vivian Fernandez, along with Habel, claimed the only doubles victory for Shelbyville Central, outlasting Katie Lawrence and Fulks, 8-6.

On the boys' side of the match, it was just a tough afternoon.

Jackson Benson, Justin Spence and Addison Wilson all fell, 8-2 in singles action.

Coffee County claimed three separate 8-0 decisions between singles and doubles matches.

Shelbyville will return home, beginning Tuesday, for the final four matches of the regular season, all of which will be played at H.V. Griffin Park.

Coffee Co. finishes sweep of Eagles

T-G STAFF REPORT

Shelbyville Central had a rough go of it in district action in a two-game series against Coffee County.

The Red Raiders took advantage of several Eagle errors to take Game 1, 8-1, and capped the series with a 3-0 win on Thursday night.

Coffee Co. 8, SCHS 1

Game 1 against the Red Raiders was a tough one for the Eagles as Shelbyville Central was hampered by six errors in an 8-1 loss to Coffee County.

For the better part of the first three innings, Shelbyville hung tough with the Red Raiders and kept the game in a scoreless deadlock.

It wasn't until back-to-back three-run innings by the Red Raiders did the game tilt in favor of the visitors.

Shelbyville rallied for a single run in the bottom of the sixth frame only to see Coffee County answer with two more in the top of the seventh.

In total, Coffee County hammered out eight hits, including a double, triple and a home run

Shelbyville Central was limited to just two singles by Carston Williams and Kyler Trice.

Marquis Wilson got the start for the Eagles and went 6 2/3 innings, allowing eight runs on eight hits, only three of which were earned.

William Bobo pitched the final 1/3 inning in relief and recorded a strikeout.

Hits were hard to come by against Coffee County but Kyler Trice managed a single in each of the games this week.

Game 2

Coffee Co. 3, SCHS 0

While the effort was better in Game 2 against the Red Raiders, the results turned out to be the same in a 3-0 loss for the Eagles on Thursday night.

It was another three-run inning that broke the game open in the bottom of the third inning.

While Coffee County was able to plate three in the inning, the game never felt truly out of reach.

Both teams connected on four hits, but Shelbyville was once again plagued by miscues and committed three errors.

Marquis Wilson, Arye Kavanaugh, Caden Thomas and Kyler Trice all singled against Coffee County in Game 2.

Jarius Brown got the start for the Eagles and pitched five innings, allowing three runs, only one of which was earned, on three hits, while striking out four.

William Bobo pitched the final inning in relief and struck out two.

Explaining Holy Week

Easter is a significant holiday for Christians across the globe. Though Easter Sunday is when faithful Christians gather to celebrate their faith, the week preceding Easter Sunday is full of significant events as well.

Known as Holy Week, the week preceding Easter begins with Palm Sunday and ends with Holy Saturday, the day preceding Easter Sunday. Holy Week commemorates different events that unfolded over the final days of Jesus Christ's life.

• Palm Sunday: According to Catholic Online, Palm Sunday celebrates the entry of Jesus Christ into Jerusalem. On the day of Christ's entry into Jerusalem, residents laid palms before him, which is why palms are distributed to the Christian faithful each year during Palm Sunday Mass. Palms are blessed at Mass, and many Christians turn their palms into crosses upon arriving home. The palms are eventually returned to the church, where they are burned, and the ashes of the palms are then used during the following year's Ash Wednesday services.

• Holy Thursday: Holy Thursday commemorates the Last Supper, when Jesus celebrated the Passover feast with his disciples. In the story of Jesus Christ, the night of the Last Supper was the same night that Jesus was betrayed by his disciple, Judas.

• Good Friday: Good Friday commemorates the trial, punishment and crucifixion of Christ. Though the official presiding over the trial of Jesus, Pontius Pilate, found no evidence of Jesus's guilt in relation to the charges filed against him, he ultimately agreed to Christ's crucifixion anyway in an effort to appease the crowd and avoid a riot. As a result, Christ was stripped, flogged and crowned with thorns before being made to carry his cross through the streets to the place where he was ultimately crucified. On Good Friday, the tabernacle inside Catholic churches is left empty to symbolize that Christ is departed.

• Holy Saturday: The final day of Holy Week, Holy Saturday is a day to remember that Christ descended into hell, where he preached the gospel and opened the way to heaven for all those who were worthy.

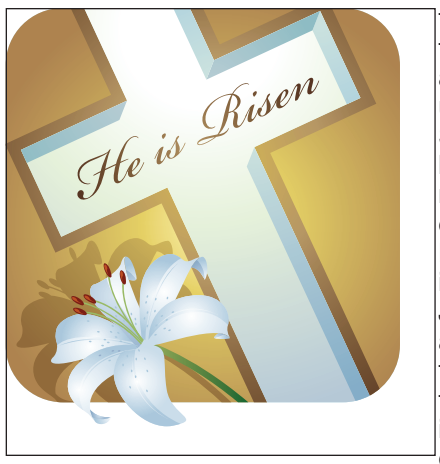
Meanings behind the Easter lily

Easter symbols and traditions help make the holiday familiar and special. Eggs, hot cross buns and frilly church dresses help paint the picture, and so does a delicate and beautiful white flower.

The Easter lily plant is native to both Taiwan and the Ryukyu Islands of Japan. The plant's flowering season begins in April and ends in June. The plant produces pure white flowers on top of long stems. Easter lilies often adorn homes and church altars during this time of year.

Tradition states that the Easter lily originated in the Garden of Eden from the teardrops of Eve that spread when she and Adam were cast out of the garden. These were believed to be tears of repentance.

Historians and biblical scholars say that the lily has always been highly regarded in the Christian Church. Jesus even references the flower in Luke 12:27, stating "Consider the lilies how they grow:



they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." Legend has it that, after Jesus' death and resurrection, lilies were found growing in the Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus is said to have prayed before his crucifixion. They were believed to have sprung up from a drop of sweat from his brow when his head was bent in prayer.

In Easter celebrations, the lily represents Christ's Resurrection, and thusly new birth and new life. The delicate, white blooms can be viewed as pure, innocent and untainted by the world.

The flower itself is used in various ways to tell the resurrection story. The bulb is buried in the ground as a representation of Christ's tomb. The trumpet-shaped fragrant flowers also announce life after death, since bulbed flowers often regrow year after year, according to the religious resource All About Jesus. And the trumpet shape signifies the angel Gabriel's trumpet call.

It's common for Easter lilies to decorate homes, churches, gardens, and more throughout the Easter season.

Brandied Baked Ham with Mustard Butter

Ham takes center stage for holiday

Many people prefer to serve ham instead of lamb for Easter dinner. Ham can be perfectly smoky and salty but also sweet when it is cooked with a delicious glaze.

This recipe for "Brandied Baked Ham with Mustard Butter" from Denise Gee's "Southern Appetizers: 60 Delectables for Gracious Get-Togethers" (Chronicle Books) pairs the fruity overtones of brandy with the tang of mustard to form an ideal blend of flavors.

Serve the ham on its own, or nestle slices between buttermilk biscuits for a brunch or lunchtime treat.

Brandied Baked Ham with Mustard Butter

Serves 16 to 20

Brandied Baked Ham
1 1/2 C. packed dark brown sugar
2 Tbsp. grainy mustard
1 (5lb.) bone-in half ham, fully cooked
1 1/2 tsp. whole cloves

Mustard Butter
2 C. butter, softened
1/4 C. grated sweet onion
1/4 C. Dijon or Creole mustard

To make the ham: In a small saucepan, stir to combine the brown sugar, brandy, and mustard. Bring the mixture to a boil over medium-high heat and, stirring constantly, cook until the glaze is thick and syrupy, about 3 minutes. (Watch carefully, holding a tight-fitting lid; if the brandy ignites, quickly cover the saucepan to tamp out the flame before removing the lid. Store in an airtight container in the refrigerator for up to 2 days. Reheat just before serving.)

Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Line a shallow roasting pan with heavy-duty aluminum foil and place a wire rack on top.

Score the fat on top of the ham by making diagonal cuts in a diamond pattern. Insert the cloves into the intersections of each diamond. Place the ham on the rack in the prepared pan. Insert a meat thermometer, making sure it doesn't touch the bone.

Bake the ham for about 1 hour, or until the meat thermometer registers 125 degrees.

Remove the ham and brush on the brandy glaze. Return the ham to the oven and cook for 20 to 30 minutes more, or until the meat thermometer registers 135 degrees. Let it stand for 15 minutes. (The meat temperature will rise to 140 degrees.)

To make the mustard butter: In a medium bowl, stir to combine the butter, sweet onion and mustard. Scrape it into a serving bowl.

Cut the ham into thin slices and arrange them on a platter. Serve accompanied with the bowl of mustard butter.

ROADSIDE TRASH

T-G Photo by Zoe Haggard

According to Tennessee state law, some littering offenses are punishable by a fine of up to $2,500. Litter cleanup is something a lot of people take for granted. The roadsides along Highway 41A North are being trashed apparently by those unable to make it to the county convenience center, which is just about a mile up the road.
