Annexations on City agenda

Council to meet Thursday

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Few citizens show up these days for public hearings conducted by Shelbyville City Council. Most who do attend have a vested interest in how annexations or rezonings might affect their property.

But that is rare. Council moves on with its action, whether citizens show up or not.

When Shelbyville City Council meets 6 p.m. Thursday at Shelbyville Recreation Center, four public hearings will be conducted.

Within any public hearing sessions, (regular meeting is adjourned) citizens have the right to express any concerns.

The Council meeting will re-adjourn following public hearings. There are no public comments allowed during Council's regular meetings.

One of those hearings on Thursday concerns a resolution for adopting a Plan of Service for an area proposed for annexation, which is a 30-acre tract of land on the west side of Highway 231 North Business Park and owned by Silicon Ranch Corporation.

Community Clinic seeks extra funds

Free health services in demand

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

Almost two years ago exactly, the Community Clinic of Shelbyville & Bedford County had to shut operations down for six weeks as the COVID-19 pandemic emerged. Executive Director Fredia Lusk said the clinic was unprepared at the time.

"When COVID hit, we were unprepared for it—we had no PPE [personal protective equipment]. We had nothing," Lusk said.

However, "The pandemic taught us how to be more resourceful because it exposed a lot of things that we were not aware of—such as the barriers concerning dental and medical care and then people's lack of understanding of their health."

The clinic doesn't see COVID patients. Instead, they've reverted to telehealth appointments for those who are sick. This was in order to protect their staff, Lusk said.

When the clinic reopened in May 2020, conducting triage findings showed many patients had undiagnosed health problems, such as high blood pressure and diabetes, since they had been avoiding doctors' offices, Lusk explained.

"COVID just brought a fear to this community, and when we're open to help them and they don't come, that concerns me, too," said Lusk.

"We are here, we provide a service for this community, and they need to take advantage of it. Where can you go and get all these services for almost nothing?"

Despite the pandemic hurdles, the community clinic managed to open a new dental clinic in January of last year, which offers the community free to low-cost dental care.

In addition to offering free dental work — including x-rays, extractions, partials and dentures — the clinic also offers mammograms, pap smears, free CT scans, lung scans and free diabetic screenings.

CCSBC was considered a "safety net clinic," which are "important primary care delivery sites for non-Medicaid insured minority and low-income populations," according to the U.S. National Library of Health. Now, the dental clinic expanded patient age past 65 (up to age 93).

However, Lusk said funding the two clinics has become a major issue. "We are still having issues with revenue."

The two clinics have separate budgets, but they are still the same 501(c)(3), Lusk explained. The medical budget is around $150,000 a year, which allows them to open only two days a week.

Lusk said they are absorbing the losses for those over age 65. "The public needs to know that we serve these people, but our 501(c)(3) receives no funding for that."

As of Feb. 28, CCSBC had over 730 medical encounters for patients between ages 18 and 65+.

One major hidden cost the clinic also must accommodate is biohazard waste removal. The clinic has gone from one to three bins of waste, causing the removal service to increase by 300 percent monthly, Lusk said.

For the past 10 years, the CCSBC has hosted a golf tournament to raise funds to support all aspects of the clinic. However, net profit from the event was always less than $5,000, according to Lusk. She explained that they had plans to do the tournament again this year, but with costs going up 25 percent at River Bend Country Club, net profit would be even lower.

"So, we're doing a campaign," Lusk said. The campaign is from March 1 to June 30 and has the goal of raising at least $50,000. Lusk says people can send monetary donations to 200 Dover St., Suite 202, Shelbyville, TN 37162.

Armed robber holds up liquor store

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g,com

Two clerks were robbed of a substantial amount of money at a Madison Street liquor store late Sunday night, Shelbyville police said.

The masked suspect robbed Economy Liquors about 9:45 p.m. The combination convenience-liquor is a frequent target for armed robberies.

"The clerks were counting the cash drawer when a man came into the store holding a gun demanding all their money," Officer Samuel Campbell's report said,

Security video shows a black male wearing a black raincoat with the hood up, blue jeans and holding a handgun with a silver barrel and black grip. Both clerks told police he had a black cloth mask over his face.

The cameras did not record the man at the time he entered or left the store.

Police searched the area around the store for the robber for some time without success.

This company is involved in a planned solar field as part of the Tennessee Valley Authority's "Green Invest" program, which Vanderbilt is taking a part of. Silicon Ranch will oversee the construction and maintenance of the solar field.

The Plan of Service, once it comes out of public hearing, will become a resolution and is likely to be approved by Council on second and final reading under old business on Thursday.

As well, there will be a hearing to annex and incorporate the same property within the boundaries of the City of Shelbyville. Once out of public hearing, the annexation request will move to a resolution on second and final reading under old business.

A recommendation has been made, and likely to be approved by Council, which would move the property from agricultural and forestry to I-3, which is heavy industrial.

The last public hearing will concern an ordinance for the City of Shelbyville to establish an updated occupational safety and health program plan. This will include providing a safety director and the implementation of the program.

Once out of public hearing, the health program will move to an ordinance and is subject to be approved under old business on second and final reading by Council.

Council is also set to approve Thursday night a resolution authorizing and directing City Attorney Ginger Shofner to file the 2020 tax bills for the collection of all delinquent taxes for that year.

Trust Foundation out of Chattanooga.

Diabetic dental patients can come twice a year for screening, while CCSBC has also received a Good Rx grant where patients receive a credit card and receive meds for "free."

CCSBC also provides "COVID education" and will have free COVID-19 vaccines available next Tuesday. The clinic bought with a grant a new COVID and flu testing machine, where results are seen in 15 minutes.

"The grants help us to pay salaries and to provide services for our patients, but there's a gap or cash-flow issue when it comes to money that's pending. And then you have to bridge that gap with our funding," Lusk explained.

"People need to realize that a rural community like us is called a 'health disparities, community' where rural communities don't have access to specialists and dental care...so these people have barriers of money, insurance, transportation."

Lusk said CCSBC has a waiting list of a couple months, but it will only get worse as more people move here. The nearest free dental clinic outside of Bedford is in Murfreesboro, Interfaith Dental.

"My concern is that we find ways to help the ones who really need help," said Lusk. "Our mission is to serve them where they are."

Patients who are seeking help from the community clinic must be Bedford County adult residents ages 18 to 60+ with at least one employed household member (proof of employment, income, and address must be provided.)

"We just have to meet the need where it is," Lusk said. "I want the community to understand how blessed they are to have us."

Crisis deepens; Ukraine accuses Moscow of 'medieval' tactics

By YURAS KARMANAU
Associated Press

LVIV, Ukraine — The humanitarian crisis in Ukraine deepened Monday as Russian forces intensified their shelling and food, water, heat and medicine grew increasingly scarce, in what the country condemned as a medieval-style siege by Moscow to batter it into submission.

A third round of talks between the two sides ended with a top Ukrainian official saying there had been minor, unspecified progress toward establishing safe corridors that would allow civilians to escape the fighting. Russia's top negotiator said he expects those corridors to start functioning Tuesday.

But that remained to be seen, given the failure of previous attempts to lead civilians to safety amid the biggest ground war in Europe since World War II.

Russian President Vladimir Putin's forces continued to pummel cities with rockets, and fierce fighting raged in places.

In one of the most desperate cities, the encircled southern port of Mariupol, an estimated 200,000 people were hoping to flee, and Red Cross officials waited to hear when a corridor would be established.

The city is short on water, food and power, and cellphone networks are down. Stores have been looted as residents search for essential goods.

Police moved through the city, advising people to remain in shelters until they heard official messages broadcast over loudspeakers to evacuate.

Hospitals in Mariupol are facing desperate shortages of antibiotics and painkillers, and doctors performed some emergency procedures without them.

The lack of phone service left anxious citizens approaching strangers to ask if they knew relatives living in other parts of the city and whether they were safe.

In the capital, Kyiv, soldiers and volunteers have built hundreds of checkpoints, often using sandbags, stacked tires and spiked cables. Some barriers looked significant, with heavy concrete slabs and sandbags piled more than two stories high, while others appeared more haphazard, with hundreds of books used to weigh down stacks of tires.

"Every house, every street, every checkpoint, we will fight to the death if necessary," said Mayor Vitali Klitschko.

MTSU officer Erskine: defensive tactics instructor

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — MTSU Officer Katelynn Erksine knows female officers like herself play a vital role in the world of law enforcement.

"I think it's important to recognize that females can do just as good of a job in this profession as males can," Erskine said. "We can offer a different perspective to certain issues. Victims can feel more comfortable speaking to a female officer. Escalated individuals can respond better to a female officer's temperament."

Erskine recently expanded her role at the MTSU Police Department, earning her certification as a defensive tactics instructor — the first female officer in the department to do so.

"The certification will allow me to teach my coworkers the skills that I have learned that can be potentially lifesaving on the streets for both officers and suspects," she said.

The designation includes endorsements in both pressure point control tactics and jiujitsu, the latter a system of unarmed combat and physical training that is popular with police departments to help decrease the use of deadly force.

Middle Tennessee State University Police Officer Katelynn Erskine recently earned her certification as a defensive tactics instructor, a first for a female officer at the campus police department.

Middle Tennessee State University Police Officer Katelynn Erskine displays her recently earned certification to serve as a Defensive Tactics Instructor — the first female officer in the department to do so — outside of the campus police department on Feb. 28.

Erskine hopes her new accreditation will give more visibility to female officers in the department, showing them that they too can succeed in even the more physical aspects of the profession.

"There is a chance officers may come into contact with someone larger," she said. "Being an instructor will not only shed light on the fact that females like myself can do this too, but that there are techniques available to allow for a safe interaction with a larger suspect."

An upstate New York-native, Erskine jumped into her role as a woman serving the community with both feet when she joined the department in 2018.

"It is so important that you be on top of your game all the time in law enforcement, to be able to do your job physically and knowledgeably," she said. "If there is training available that I believe will help me to be better at my job, I am going to do my best to get involved."

In addition to her tactical training, Erskine is a certified instructor in Rape Aggression Defense Systems, also known as RAD, and has taken Krav Maga classes, a self-defense and fighting system developed by the Israeli military.

Fellow officer Blake Durham agreed that it is crucial for female officers to be involved with defensive tactics instruction.

"It shows that females can engage safely with a bigger and stronger person," Durham said. "It allows other females in the department to become more comfortable with training in this area. A lot of females are uncomfortable training with males, so having a female instructor allows some more one-on-one instruction."

Opportunities for prospective officers

The university's police department is currently hiring entry-level officers to serve the campus community.

"We are always looking for passionate, qualified individuals to join our team," Capt. Jeff Martinez said. "Both male and female officers are integral to our mission of keeping the university community safe."

Gunshots narrowly miss woman trapped in home

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

A man who allegedly shot within a few feet of a girlfriend's head last Friday is being held on $252,000 bond at Bedford County Jail.

William Ray Ransom, 90, of Old Columbia Road allegedly became intoxicated while fishing with an "on-again, off-again" girlfriend Thursday, said Det. Lt. John Sweeney of the Bedford County Sheriff's Office.

The woman called 911 shortly before 5 a.m. Friday, saying Ransom was shooting around her head with a .38 caliber pistol while blocking her in a bedroom with his wheelchair.

Ransom allegedly yelled that she was "going to die," Sweeney said. Several of the bullets came within a foot of her head.

The victim escaped from the house as deputies arrived, according to Sweeney.

"He raised the gun at deputies. They told him to drop the gun and he threw it on the ground," Sweeney said.

Ransom was charged with aggravated kidnapping, aggravated domestic assault, sexual battery and violation of a no contact order.

Charges of possession of schedule II, III, IV and VI drugs and paraphernalia, public intoxication and criminal impersonation were filed. He was held on $16,000 bond.

•The smell of marijuana led to a drug charge against a driver during a traffic stop Friday night on Madison Street.

Containers with .14 grams of marijuana and paraphernalia were confiscated after Officer Darrian Lanier stopped Courtney Danielle Bell, 23, of Anthony Lane for driving 53 mph in a 40 mph zone. She was cited accordingly.

Water damage advice

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise: In July 2020, we experienced devastating water damage to our home of over 30 years while we were on vacation. We learned many things during the process of working with our insurance company. We were out of our house for 10 months due to severe damage to all of our bathrooms and much of our living area. When we first returned back to the house, I took pictures of ALL of the damaged areas. We continued taking pictures throughout the restoration process. Using those pictures, we were able to work with our insurance adjuster to make sure we were reimbursed for restoration back to pre-flood conditions.

A flood or, even worse, a major fire can be emotionally devastating. To make working with your insurance company easier, a complete set of pictures prior to a catastrophe will help both your readers and their insurance companies. Without pictures, it is difficult to remember what you had and provide proof.

Each homeowner or renter should take a complete set of pictures of every room, every special feature, furniture and belongings. Open all drawers, cabinets and closets. This might take some time. But if it's ever needed, these pictures will be invaluable. Be sure to store the pictures in a safe and secure location.

Similar to one of your recent letters, we sorted through all of our belongings returned from storage. We made three piles -- throw away, give away and keep. I now know what I have and have gotten rid of boxes and boxes of items no longer needed or wanted. Our adult children will thank us when they have to clean out our home. -- Lore, Fullerton, California

Lore, thank your for sharing your awful experience and for giving my readers great advice in preventing and handling a home crisis like this. -- Heloise

BUYING ONLINE AND SAFETY

Dear Heloise: Many of us enjoy searching Craigslist, Facebook Marketplace, etc., for items that we are interested in. After receiving the seller's address, I pull up the address and can see the house or business. This gives me more security in where I am going, or if it is a place that I would not be comfortable visiting. -- John, West Milton, Ohio

John, this is excellent safety advice. Do get extra information before you go into an unknown place. -- Heloise

REusING TISSUES BOXES

Dear Heloise: Empty tissue boxes can be saved and reused in the following ways:

-- In the kitchen for saving grocery receipts.

-- On the dryer for collecting lint cleaned from the trap.

-- Near the new tissue box to collect used tissues, rather than stuffing them in your pocket.

-- On a child's dresser to collect hair bands and barrettes.

-- On a desk or workstation to hold pens, colored pencils, markers, etc. -- Fran B., Kent, Connecticut

PURCHASING MEDICINE

Dear Heloise: I learned this lesson when caring for my aged mom. When you are prescribed a new medicine, you are not required to purchase all the pills at one time (which can be expensive, especially if they don't work for you or go unused). Just tell the pharmacist that you want a certain number of pills. In most cases (except for narcotics), they will fill part of a prescription for you, which you can complete at a later date. -- Barbara O., via email

Send a money-saving or timesaving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001, or you can fax it to 1-210-HELOISE or email it to Heloise@Heloise.com. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

FIRE SAFETY

Dear Heloise: Just a brief word about kitchen safety:

Every day someone has some type of kitchen fire in the U.S. Know what to do if this happens to you.

-- Have an up-to-date fire extinguisher handy in your kitchen. Make sure you know how to use it and that the date on the canister is current.

-- Never throw water on a grease fire. If you do, it very well might cause the fire to spatter and spread.

-- If you have an electrical fire with one of the stove's burners, reach over (if possible) and turn the electricity off.

-- Baking soda can be used on very small fires.

-- If you set a dish towel or an oven mitt on fire, throw it in the sink and run water over it.

-- DON'T use flour or cornstarch on a fire, because they are combustible materials and could possibly cause an explosion.

A celebratory Passover dessert

(Culinary.net)

When celebrating with family, there is nearly nothing better than passing a light and sweet dessert around the table. These Simple Macaroons are crisp, dipped in decedent chocolate and a completely scrumptious option for celebrating Passover.

Simple to make and easy to eat, this sweet dessert is a crowd favorite. With a fresh kick of lemon zest and crunch of shredded coconut, they are a bite-sized, delicious way to end your meal.

They take little to no time to make, only baking 10-12 minutes for a tray full of tasty dessert bites ready to devour.

With sweet honey and vanilla, the flavors come together to create something sweet but not overpowering. It's a small, crumbly bite that's perfect for sharing during Passover.

FRUIT TREES

They are budding. Let's hope that we don't a late freeze that will damage the buds and blooms, but remember that is still a possibility.

But it is time to start protecting them from insects and fungus problems that can damage fruit before it sets on.

We have a really good publication for homeowners who have fruit plantings. There are insecticide recommendations for many of the common insect pests. These products have been used for years and thoroughly reviewed for safety by the Food and Drug Administration and USDA. Now is the time to start planning and in many cases to apply to protect the plants from insect invasion.

In addition, there are fungal problems that will damage the fruit and there are good and safe fungicides that can be helpful. These products are recommended as well. In many cases, they can be applied at the same time with the insect protection.

This publication is Disease and Insect Control in Home Fruit Plantings. Its number is PB 1622. The link is https://extension.tennessee.edu/publications/Documents/PB1622.pdf There are some really good pictures to describe the various bud stages that are key to correct application times.

I can help with copies for those who don't' have internet access, or for those who have email addresses I can share the link and to others on pruning, management, fertilizing and other topics. Call the office at 931-684-5971 or email me at jteague1@utk.edu.

SOIL TESTING

I'll keep reminding you. It's time to get those samples collected and sent to the lab. Fertilizers are too expensive to guess. These lab results will recommend lime if needed, nitrogen based on crop submitted, as well as phosphorus and potassium.

This is a year to make management decisions based on data, and not just guessing. With inputs approaching $1,000 per ton, it's smart. Anything else is not.

We've got the sample boxes, information sheets, and soil probes to help with the sampling. I use a shovel and a bucket, so it's not surgery. Just get it done.

SPRING

If you've read my articles over the years, the past 21 plus years to be exact, you'll know that I get spring fever about September and I look forward to signs of new life that come out during the late winter and early spring.

Tree buds

Green grass

Baby calves, new foals, little lambs and goats, baby chicks, flowers, tree buds, green grass, the smell of new life, it's just a good thing. I've attached some photos of some signs of spring that I found that I want to share. It's good to appreciate these things. Just take time and look around and think about how good this is.

THE KIDS

Meme went to see the boys start the baseball season this past weekend. She shared a good report. Hank played shortstop and center field. In one inning alone, he caught two fly balls and stopped a ground ball and threw out a runner at second to retire the sides. He had other catches, too.

Ford played first, pitched, and between right field. He hit well, scored runs, and had a great time. He's still kicking in the dirt some, but he's having fun. And that's good. We're not looking for them to go to the pros yet. We want them to have fun, learn the game, get exercise, make friends, and learn good sportsmanship.

Piper went to school the other day dressed like Dr. Seuss and the Cat in the Hat. She was cute as she could be, but then what else would I think?! She is learning to read, or at least make us think she's reading. It's so much fun to listen to her version of what's in print. Entertaining to say the least!

Those are the most important things for all of 'em. Learning, friends, healthy and fun. Think about it.

Normandy Lake springs to life

Author William Wordsworth once said, "A lake carries you into recesses of feeling otherwise impenetrable."

It's likely Wordsworth experienced how a lake is a great place to forget about troubles. It's a fun place to skip a stone, watch the water ripple and sometimes hear laughter from boat riders.

A lake can transport you into a restful state, according to Wordsworth. That is, if you take the time to allow such in your life.

Bedford County can boast of its own such place of respite—Normandy Lake.

Boaters, fishermen, and eastern bluebirds alike recently enjoyed the warm, crisp 75-degree weather on Normandy Lake.

So, Spring seems to be just around the corner, which is a welcome relief after our recent cold, rainy winter season.

TWICE IS NICE

The Webb bench erupts after Bree Robinson drilled a 3-pointer in the second half against MTCS on Saturday.

Lady Feet down MTCS for 2nd straight state title

By CHRIS SIERS
sports@t-g.com

COOKEVILLE — Beating a team three times a season is tough on any team. Playing a team a fourth time for a state championship can be even tougher.

While the first half of Saturday's Division II Class A state championship went anything but according to plan for Webb, the Lady Feet rallied for 48 second-half points and won their second-straight state title, beating MTCS (25-10) for the fourth time this season, 68-48.

Having struggled to shoot in the first half and battling a slew of fouls, Lady Feet coach Matthew Shewmake's halftime message to his team was simple — the Lady Feet were in complete control of the game's outcome.

Message received.

"We have higher expectations for ourselves than anyone else can put on us and we weren't living up to those. We weren't playing like we should and they (Webb) were in complete control to change that and it was on them," he said.

"I wanted to empower them that it was their choice to make how they were going to respond in the second half. Like I said, adversity every day, it was something they've been used to doing all day and they stepped up and put their foot on the gas."

The first half was a titanic struggle for both teams shooting.

MTCS went just 8-of-26 attempts from the floor, while Webb didn't fare much better, shooting just 30% in the first half.

Webb also went just 5-for-12 from the free throw line in the first half.

The lone bright spot for Webb was Bree Robinson, who spurred the Lady Feet offense by connecting on 3-of-5 3-pointers in the first half.

Of Webb's 20 first-half points, Robinson led the way with 11 and was the only player at that point to reach double figures.

"Bree has been doing that all year. Any time we've had a lull or needed a bucket, she's stepped up and done it. Any time the other team has a good player and we need to count on someone to guard her one-on-one, Bree does it," Shewmake said.

MTCS made it interesting just before the half and cut the Lady Feet lead to one point following a 3-point buzzer beater by Sydney Cooper.

"I know the nerves were running high. We're just limping through it and we make a little run and then the kid made a nice shot to cut it to one before the half. We were kind of playing cat and mouse with them, just trying to figure out what they're going to do and what we're going to do," Shewmake said.

Even with the last-second score by the Lady Cougars, Robinson continued her consistency on the offensive end of the court into the second half and during a 58-second stretch in the third quarter, rattled off eight-straight points to help the Lady Feet break the game open with a 12-point lead.

MTCS never truly threatened again.

Webb went on to extend its lead to as many as 25 points late in the fourth quarter.

After shooting just 30% in the first half, Webb finished the game shooting 51.1% from the floor and was 17-of-32 at the line.

MTCS never could answer Webb's defensive effort in the second half and finished shooting just 18-of-55 for 32.7% on the night.

Lady Feet halt Trinity in state semis

COOKEVILLE — While it was an up and down effort on the defensive court in the first half of Friday afternoon's Division II Class A state semifinal, Webb (30-6) was able to play enough of a lockdown effort to hold Trinity Christian (25-5) under 40 points and advance to the state championship for the second-straight year with a 64-36 win over the Lady Lions.

"We didn't have the kind of defensive effort in the first half we had really wanted, but we stepped it up in the second half and did a much better as team," Webb coach Matthew Shewmake said.

Webb held Trinity Christian to just seven points in the opening frame and posted a 7-0 lead before the Lady Lions got on the scoreboard with a basket by Carden Vailes with 5:22 left in the quarter.

Following a pair of free throws by Trinity Christian's Amelia Goehring, Webb finished the quarter on a 10-1 run to lead 20-7 after the first quarter.

Both teams struggled to consistently score in the second quarter and Trinity Christian was able to outscore Webb, 11-10 in the quarter, but Webb was still able to post a 12-point lead at the half.

But after halftime, it was Bre'aria Cannon that caught fire on the perimeter for the Lady Feet.

She knocked down a pair of 3's in the quarter and scored 10 of her game-high 20 points in the period.

She added two more threes in the fourth quarter as Webb shrugged off any comeback bid by the Lady Lions.

Cannon shot an incredibly efficient 66% from the perimeter and knocked down six of Webb's eight made treys.

"They kept helping off her (Cannon) and they kept throwing it to her and she kept making it. That's what she does," Shewmake said.

Aalyah Del Rosario also hit double figures and finished with 12 points and seven rebounds.

Tatianna Stovall nearly had a double-double and finished with nine points and 10 boards.

One area Shewmake was particularly pleased with in Four Lady Feet reached double figures in Saturday's state championship, with Robinson's 19 points leading all scorers.

Tournament MVP Tatianna Stovall scored 14 points, while Angelica Velez and Lauren Rust added 13 and 12, respectively.

Webb's depth proved invaluable in the tournament. During the semifinals, it was Bre'aria Cannon and Aalyah Del Rosario that gave Webb big minutes and led the team in the scoring column.

During the championship game, Robinson and Stovall came through in the clutch for the Lady Feet.

"We talked about that every day at practice all through the year that it's going to be somebody different each night and that's OK. Today it was Tatianna and Bree and yesterday it was Bre'aria Cannon and Aalyah," Shewmake said.

For MTCS, Jailyn Banks was the top-scorer as she finished with 16 points.

Autumn Davis and Sarah Wisniowski added 12 and 10, respectively.

Saturday's championship marked the second for the Webb School in as many years, although last year's roster looked significantly different from this year's championship team.

"This group is different. People don't understand what practice is every day and what the negative chatter that went on. They're mentally tough and they battled," Shewmake said.

Webb finishes the season with a 31-6 overall record.

the state semifinals was the ball distribution and finding the open shot in the half court.

"Seventeen assists on 23 field goals means we shared the ball pretty well. That's kind of what our calling card is going to be. We're going to share the ball, make the right play and take what they give us," he said.

Webb locked down Trinity Christian for the most part and just three Lady Lions found their way into the scoring column.

Friday's semifinal featured two Ms. Basketball finalists, with Del Rosario facing off against Olivia Lee of Trinity Christian.

Lee finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds, but it was Carden Vailes who was the consistent scorer throughout the game for the Lady Lions. She finished with a team-high 15 points, while Goehring added seven.

Viqueens close with tough sectional loss

By RICKEY CLARDY
Sports Writer

UNIONVILLE — The Community Viqueens battled back from an 8-point halftime deficit to take a fourth-quarter lead, but the York Institute Dragonettes retook the lead and held off the Viqueens down the stretch as the Dragonettes finished with a 32-31 win in a Class AA sectional matchup Saturday night.

The loss ended the season for the Viqueens.

Community (25-8) took a brief 3-2 lead in the opening quarter on a trey by Addison Brothers, but the Dragonettes used a sweltering defense and double-team pressure to go along with some high percentage points from around the basket on offense to gain the early advantage.

After leading 6-5, York Institute scored the final seven points and took a 13-5 lead to the second quarter.

Zoey Dixon and Breanna Whitaker each had three points for Community in the quarter, but the Dragonettes kept the pressure on the Viqueens.

York Institute took its biggest lead at 21-11 before the Viqueens narrowed the Dragonette advantage to 21-13 at the intermission.

"That's a really good ball team and we knew they were coming in," Coach Cody Pierce of the Viqueens said.

"They put some pressure on us in the first half and it took us a little while to settle in."

The Viqueens would use the inside play of M.J. Simmons to take the lead in the third quarter.

After Whitaker led off the quarter with a trey, Simmons connected on a basket with 5:39 remaining as Community used an 9-0 run to take its first lead since the opening quarter at 22-21.

Simmons finished with eight points as the score was deadlocked at 24-24 heading to the final quarter.

Points were at a premium as the teams battled to gain the upper hand in the final eight minutes.

After a Community steal on the defensive end, Simmons connected on a layup to give the Viqueens a 28-26 lead with 4:35 to play.

It would be the final points for Community until the waning seconds.

York Institute followed with the next four points to take a 30-28 lead with 3:44 remaining and took time off the clock with the lead.

After the Dragonettes missed on the front end of a one-and-one with 1:15 left, the Viqueens had two possessions to take the lead, but could not cash in on their shots.

The Dragonettes responded with a layup after the final miss to take a 32-28 lead with 31 seconds left.

The Viqueens still had hope as Haley Mitchell connected on a trey with three seconds remaining to pull Community within one at 32-31.

The Viqueens stole the resulting inbounds pass at half court, but a desperation heave missed the mark as the Dragonettes advanced to the TSSAA Class AA state tournament.

"In the second half we settled in, we didn't let that press get to us and we got back in the game, but we just couldn't ever hit that big shot to get a two or three-point lead," Pierce said.

"We had the looks, we had the stops, we had the steals, the ball just didn't go in," Pierce added.

Reese Beaty and Gabby Beaty each had 13 points to lead the Dragonettes.

Simmons led the Viqueens with 13 points.

York Institute was 5-of-7 at the free throw line while the Viqueens had an uncharacteristic tough night from the stripe and finished 3-of-8.

The contest was the final game for Whitaker, the lone senior on the Viqueen squad.

Breanna Whitaker drives to the basket and scores for the Viqueens. Whitaker had six points in her final game for Community.

"Breanna will be missed," Pierce said. "She's been with us for four years and done everything we've asked."

"She's a true Viqueen."

Stocks fall on Wall Street

Oil price briefly hits $130

BY STAN CHOE AND YURI KAGEYAMA, AP BUSINESS WRITERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks are falling in early trading on Wall Street Monday, as more gains for oil prices threaten to worsen the world's already high inflation.

The S&P 500 was 0.9% lower after a barrel of U.S. oil leaped as high as $130 overnight on the possibility the U.S. could bar imports from Russia. Stocks around the world slid even more sharply earlier in the day, but they trimmed their losses as oil receded back toward $117 per barrel.

Some markets in Europe even briefly erased all of their steep losses. Stocks in Paris were close to flat after having plunged as much as 5% in the morning.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 301 points, or 0.9%, at 33,313, as of 10:07 a.m. Eastern time, and the Nasdaq composite was 1% lower.

Gold and a measure of nervousness on Wall Street were also higher, but not by as much as they had been when oil prices were at their peak. The price of gold briefly topped $2,000 per ounce before trading at $1,975.80, up 0.5%.

Markets took much of their cue from oil prices, which have soared recently on worries that Russia's invasion of Ukraine will upend already tight supplies. Russia is one of the world's largest energy producers, and oil prices were already high before the attack because the global economy is demanding more fuel following its coronavirus-caused shutdown.

U.S. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said in a letter to her colleagues on Sunday that "The House is currently exploring strong legislation" to further isolate Russia because of its attack on Ukraine. That could include a ban on imports of Russian oil and energy products, she said.

It's a major step that the U.S. government has not yet taken, despite a long list of moves to punish Russia, as the White House has said it hopes to limit disruptions to oil markets. It wants to limit price jumps at the gasoline pump.

Reports also said U.S. officials may be considering easing sanctions against Venezuela. That potentially could free up more crude oil and ease concerns about reduced supplies from Russia.

A gallon of regular already costs an average of $4.065 across the gallon after breaching the $4 barrier on Sunday for the first time since 2008. A month ago, a gallon averaged $3.441, according to AAA.

A barrel of U.S. crude oil was trading at $117.67 per barrel, up 1.7%, after earlier touching $130.50. Brent crude, the international standard, was up 2% at $120.47 per barrel.

Markets worldwide have swung wildly recently on worries about how high prices for oil, wheat and other commodities produced in the region will go because of Russia's invasion, inflaming the world's already high inflation. In the United States, prices for consumers jumped last month from their year-ago level at their fastest rate in four decades.

The list of companies exiting Russia has grown to include Mastercard, Visa and American Express, as well as Netflix.

The conflict in Ukraine also threatens the food supply in some regions, including Europe, Africa and Asia, which rely on the vast, fertile farmlands of the Black Sea region, known as the "breadbasket of the world."

"The Ukraine-Russia conflict will continue to dominate market sentiments and no signs of conflict resolution thus far may likely put a cap on risk sentiments into the new week," said Yeap Jun Rong, market strategist at IG in Singapore.

"It should be clear by now that economic sanctions will not deter any aggression from the Russians, but will serve more as a punitive measure at the expense of implication on global economic growth. Elevated oil prices may pose a threat to firms' margins and consumer spending outlook," Yeap said.

Shares of Bed Bath & Beyond soared after the investment firm of billionaire Ryan Cohen took a nearly 10% stake in the company and recommended big changes. Cohen is the co-founder of Chewy, and he's amassed somewhat of a cult following after he took a stake in GameStop, the struggling video game chain that eventually named him board chairman.

Shares of Bed Bath & Beyond jumped 58% to $25.57.

Treasury yields climbed, with the 10-year rising to 1.77%.
